6 Brentson Buckner

Brentson Buckner has the image of the prototype mean defensive lineman. But, off the field this English major is a soft spoken individual who just might become a journalist some day. He follows all sports, even the ones he does not play.

49 Jeff Bryant

Eighteen members of Clemson's 1981 National Championship team went on to play in the NFL, but only one is still active. There is a reason Jeff Bryant is still going strong as a starter with the Seattle Seahawks. It is called an undying work ethic.

51 Singing Tigers

Some members of the Clemson football team don't just lay around the dorm on Sunday mornings. The Singing Tigers make up the largest choir in the South, and we do mean large.

61 Darren Calhoun

Darren Calhoun entered Clemson on an academic scholarship. Some felt his tackle total would not be higher than his GPA. But, Calhoun has proven the doubters wrong and is one of the top tacklers on the Clemson defense.

63 'Doc Hoover

With the retirement of longtime baseball coach Bill Wilhelm, Fred Hoover is now the dean of Clemson athletic administrators. Hoover, a multiple Hall of Fame selection, has been supervising Clemson's training activities for 35 years. Turn to page 63 to read about the man who has run down the hill more times than anyone else in history.

73 Mark Swygert

For three years Mark Swygert has played in the shadows of Nicky Goetze, Danny Ellis and Bobby Doolittle. Now it is Swygert's turn to lead the Clemson golf program to another Top 10 finish.

77 Tiger Cub Club

Now people of all ages can join IPTAY. The Tiger Cub Club was established for kids who have a keen interest in Clemson. The benefits for the $30 membership include free admission to selected sporting events and other gifts.

109 Jaro Zawislan

Clemson's starting goalkeeper might be the top all-around student-athlete at Clemson. Already the Clemson record holder for career saves, Zawislan won Clemson's Rand-McNally Award as the top Geography student at Clemson last year.

111 Pierre Wilson

Senior tackle Pierre Wilson is a key to Clemson's defense in 1993. A fine all-around athlete, Wilson might have a chance at the pros with a good senior year. But, he is also pursuing a career in another field.

112 The Last Word

Clemson athletes over the last 60 years owe Dr. Rupert Fike a favor. He was the man who founded IPTAY back in 1934 and Clemson athletes have reaped the benefits of his foresight ever since. Bob Bradley takes a look at the founding father of America's top scholarship foundation.

Sapp Ranked Among Nation's Top Passers

Clemson quarterback Patrick Sapp is ranked 29th in the nation in passing efficiency with a 146.9 figure. The sophomore from Jacksonville, FL has completed 25-44 for 417 yards and two touchdowns. Sapp has completed 57 percent of his passes and has thrown just one interception, a batted ball that fell in the arms of a Florida State lineman.

No Clemson quarterback has ranked in the top 25 in the nation in passing efficiency since 1984 when Mike Eppley was 25th with a 123.8 figure. The highest passing efficiency mark for a Clemson quarterback over the course of the season is 158.26 by Willie Jordan in 1975, but Jordan did not have enough attempts to qualify for the NCAA stats that season.

Sapp has not built his completion percentage through short passes. He has a 9.48 yards per attempt figure. The Clemson record for yards per attempt in a season is 9.19 by Bobby Gage in 1947, so Sapp is on a record pace in that area. He has just one interception in 44 attempts and is currently Clemson's career leader in interception avoidance.

Smith Among Nation's Top Receivers

Patrick Sapp's main target is senior wide receiver Terry Smith. The senior from Clemson, SC is 10th in the nation in reception yards per game (111.5) and is 30th in receptions per game with 5.5. Smith had eight catches for 156 yards against Florida State's fine defense. That 156 yards ranked third best in Clemson history for a single game and was just seven yards away from the Clemson single game record established by Jerry Butler against Georgia Tech in 1977.

Smith is third in the ACC in receptions and reception yardage and is second on the Clemson team in all-purpose running yards with 223. Smith now needs just 16 receptions and just 407 yards to become Clemson's career leader in both receptions and reception yardage. He went over the 2,000-yard mark in his career with the performance against Florida State, just the third Tiger in history to do that. Jerry Butler and Perry Tuttle are the others.

Clemson vs. Georgia Tech Notes

*Georgia Tech leads the overall series 39-16-2. All but six of the games have been played in Atlanta.

*Clemson holds a 4-2 advantage in games played at Death Valley. Clemson's last win over Georgia Tech took place at Clemson in 1991 by a 9-7 score.

*The three meetings between the two teams since Ken Hatfield has been at Clemson have been decided by a total of eight points. Georgia Tech won last year, 20-16 and the two teams exchanged two-point decisions in 1990 and 1991. Tech won in 1990 by a 21-19 score.

*The two teams are dead even, 5-5, in games played over the last 10 years.

*Ken Hatfield is 1-3 against Georgia Tech in his coaching career, 1-2 at Clemson and 0-1 at Air Force.

Georgia Tech Update

Like Clemson, Georgia Tech is attempting to get back into postseason bowl picture after suffering a losing season in 1992. The Yellow Jackets won the National Championship in 1990, but struggled in 1992 after a heartbreaking nationally televised loss at home to Florida State.

Georgia Tech is off to a good start offensively in 1993 thanks to a talented sophomore quarterback. The similarities between these two teams are endless. Donnie Davis waited two seasons to become the starting quarterback, as he sat the bench behind one of Georgia Tech's all-time greats, Shawn Jones. In Davis's first contest, a 37-3 win over Furman, he completed 14-19 passes for 191 yards and no interceptions. He connected on his first seven attempts of the game and directed the Yellow Jackets 90 yards for a score in their first possession.

For the second straight home game, Clemson will have to contend with an athlete who began his collegiate career on Notre Dame's 1989 second-ranked 12-1 squad. UNLV's Erik Simien and Georgia Tech tailback Dorsey Levens were teammates on that Irish team four years ago. Levens had a career high 112 yards rushing in the win over Furman and he is the senior leader on a Yellow Jacket running game that is capable of breaking in the clear at any time. Jimmy Lincoln also had a 100-yard game on the ground, the first time in nine years that Tech had a pair of 100-yard rushers in the same game.

Defensive tackle Richard Kimsey and outside linebacker Tom Johnson led the defensive effort in Georgia Tech's opening game win over Furman. Kimsey recorded a quarterback sack and Johnson had five tackles. Jamel Cox and Boyd Andrews combined for 17 tackles as Furman gained less than 100 yards on the ground.

Bill Lewis is the coach of the Yellow Jackets. He posted a 5-6 record in his first season at Georgia Tech, but he was 11-1 in 1991 as the head coach of East Carolina. He was named the National Coach of the Year by the American Football Coaches Association that year, the same award Ken Hatfield won in 1983.

Inside Linebackers Lead Clemson Defense

Inside linebackers Derek Burnette and Tim Jones lead the Clemson defense in tackles this year. Burnette, a freshman All-American according to USA Today last year, has 16 stops to lead the team. He had 10 tackles against Florida State, including a tackle for loss.

Patrick Sapp is on a record pace in terms of passing yards per attempt.

Jones, a sophomore All-American by the Football News last year, has 15 tackles, including a tackle for loss, this season. He led the team in tackles in the opener against UNLV with nine. Jones or Burnette have led Clemson in tackles in nine of the last 13 games over two seasons.

Buckner Back, Approaching 20 Sacks

Clemson senior Brentson Buckner had five tackles, including a quarterback sack against Florida State and Charlie Ward. Buckner now has 16.5 sacks for his career, eighth in Clemson history, and has 33 tackles for loss, ninth best in Clemson records. As a junior, Buckner had eight sacks and 18 tackles for loss. The tackle for loss total tied a Clemson record for a junior.

Humphrey in Top 10 in Punt Returns

Sophomore Andre Humphrey ranks in the top 50 in the nation in both punt returns and kickoff returns. The defensive back is sixth in punt returns with a 16.2 average, a figure that also leads the ACC. He leads the Clemson team in all-purpose running with 230 yards in the two games so far. His 49-yard punt return against UNLV is the longest by an ACC player this season. Humphrey is among the top tacklers on the Clemson team with 10 stops so far this season, including a tackle for a loss.

The native of Wilmington, NC is one of the top all-around athletes at Clemson. He lettered on the 13th ranked Clemson wrestling team as a freshman, in addition to his football duties. He is talking about going out for the Clemson baseball team this spring.

Davis Most Improved Tiger

While Terry Smith leads Clemson in receiving with 11-223, the receiving corps also boasts the most improved player on the Clemson team, Jason Davis. The red-shirt senior had just five career catches in 32 games entering this season, but he has already accumulated 8-133 so far this season. He has a 16.6 yards per reception figure, second best on the team, and actually ranks eighth in the conference in receptions per game and is seventh in reception yards per game.

Blunt Chasing 2,000-yard mark

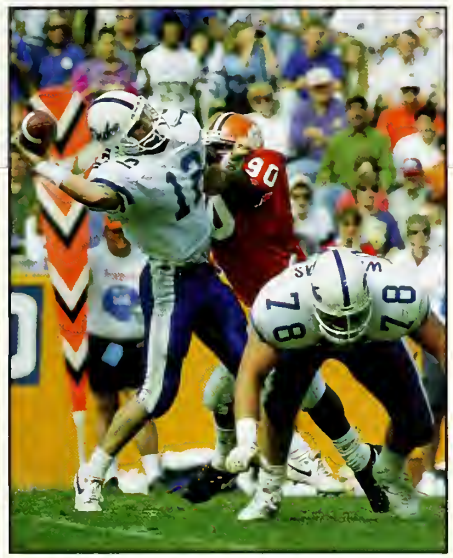
Clemson has averaged just 98 yards per game on the ground, including just 2.3 yards per carry. It is an area that Ken Hatfield's Tigers need to improve on when they meet Georgia Tech. No Clemson rusher has had as many as 30 yards in a contest so far this season, a sharp drop from a team that has ranked in the top 10 in the nation in rushing three straight seasons.

Rodney Blunt is the leading rusher with 47 yards so far this season. He needs 96 against Georgia Tech to reach 2,000 for his career. When he reaches the 2,000-yard mark he will rank 13th in Clemson history in career rushing yardage.

Second Game Blues

Clemson suffered a 57-0 loss at Florida State on September 11 in the Tigers second game of the season. It continued a trend of difficulty for the Tigers in the second game of the season.

Clemson has won 75.4 percent of its games since 1978 and has had 10 Associated Press Top 20 seasons in this era. But, in the second game of the season the Tigers are just 7-8-1, a 47 percent winning percentage. Only the seventh game of the season has a worse winning percentage since 1978.



Warren Forney had arthroscopic knee surgery last week, but hopes to return for today's game against a Georgia Tech team that is among the ACC leaders in rushing.

Green Named IPTAY Athlete of the Year

Michael Green will be honored at today's game as the 1992-93 IPTAY Athlete of the Year. The sprinter on Clemson's very successful track team won a national championship during the indoor season and one during the outdoor season last year, the first Clemson athlete to win two national championships in the same year.

Green joins a list of Tiger greats who have won this award. The first recipient was Steve Fuller in 1978-79. Terry Kinard, Mike Eppley, Vincent Hamilton, Horace Grant, Mitzi Kremer and Barbara Kennedy are among the previous recipients.

Green was featured in the UNLV football program along with Clemson's other 1992-93 national champions, Sam Henson and Wesley Russell.

Clemson in Death Valley

Clemson will play five of its next six games in Clemson Memorial Stadium. The Tigers only road game between September 12 and November 6 is at Duke on October 9. Clemson has seven games in Death Valley this season, just the fourth time in Clemson history that the Tigers have had seven or more home games in a season. Five of the seven home games are against ACC opponents.

Clemson has an all-time record of 175-64-7 in Death Valley over the years, a 73 percent winning mark. Only two schools, Auburn and Florida State, have a winning record against the Tigers in Death Valley over the years (given a minimum of three games played). Ken Hatfield has a record of 17-2-1 in Death Valley in his four years as coach of the Tigers.

The Clemson-Georgia Tech game is the first of four opponents coming to Death Valley in 1993 who beat Clemson in their home stadium in 1992. The others are N.C. State, Wake Forest and Maryland.

Tiger Cub Debuts on September 25th

The Tiger mascot will have some companionship when the Tigers meet Georgia Tech. The Tigers' nephew, the Tiger Cub, will be unveiled prior to the game at Clemson Memorial Stadium. The Tiger Cub is the mascot for the Tiger Cub Club, a new student group of IPTAY members. Youngsters contribute $30 a year to join IPTAY and receive benefits that range from a quarterly newsletter and a membership card to reduced ticket prices for Clemson football, basketball and baseball games. Jay Williams, a graduate student from Fairfax, Virginia who is studying human resources development, will serve as the Tiger Cub mascot.

Tigers in the NFL

There are 25 former Clemson players on NFL rosters. This includes two players on "practice squads" (Robert O'Neal with the Miami Dolphins and Larry Ryans with the Detroit Lions) and one player on injured reserve (Terry Allen with Minnesota Vikings). The list does not include Kevin Mack, a running back with the Cleveland Browns who is expected to come out of retirement by the end of September.

The Chicago Bears have the most former Tigers with four (Gardocki, Jennings, Woolford and Perry), while the Seattle Seahawks have three with Bryant, Johnson and Thomas. Jeff Bostic is the veteran of the group as he is in his 14th pro season, while Jeff Bryant is in his 12th season with Seattle. The list includes six rookies (Rudy Harris, James Trapp, Ashley Sheppard, Larry Ryans, Wayne Simmons and Robert O'Neal).

There are 22 former Tigers on active NFL rosters, the same number of former Tigers who appeared in NFL games all of 1992. Clemson has had between 18 and 22 players on NFL active rosters each of the last eight years.

It is also interesting to note that five linebackers off the 1990 team (Levon Kirkland, Wayne Simmons, Ashley Sheppard, Ed McDaniel and John Johnson) are in the NFL. Clemson's linebacker group that year was named the best in the nation by the Sporting News preseason issue.

Brentson Buckner

by Annabelle Vaughan

When watching Brentson Buckner play football, probably the last thing that comes to mind are the immortal works of William Shakespeare. At 6-2, 300 pounds, with the speed of a man 100 pounds lighter, Buckner might better remind people of one of the action-adventure heroes from today's silver screen—perhaps Arnold Schwarzenegger or Jean Claude Van Damme or maybe even Steven Segal. Instead of being armed with a machine gun, his weapons are his speed, quickness and strength.

But Measure for Measure, Shakespeare interests Buckner more than the "shoot-em-up" heroes of today, and he would rather be known as The Tempest than "The Terminator." Buckner is just as comfortable in a class of fellow English majors discussing Shakespeare's romances as he is in a coach's conference room discussing blocking techniques.

"The thing I like about Shakespeare is that what you see at first glance is not always the true meaning," Buckner says. "The surface is just the surface, but underneath, there are many different levels of meaning. I like to think of myself like that. On the outside, I look like a big tough guy, but inside, there's a lot more there."

What you see at first glance at Brentson Buckner will certainly fill your frame of vision, as his 300-plus pounds often dwarfs his surroundings. You also see strength to go along with that size, as Buckner was named a National Strength and Conditioning Coaches Strength All-American in 1992. His 455-pound bench-press mark leads the 1993 squad, while his 1,120-pound leg-sled mark is the second-best in Clemson history.

But another thing you may see on first glance at Brentson Buckner is what many have called a "baby face." Try as he might, his pleasant demeanor seldom changes, even when things aren't going his way. In fact, a couple of years ago when the Clemson Sports Information Office printed baby pictures of the Tiger football players in the game program, numerous people commented that Buckner looked exactly the same.

"People always tell me that I have a baby face," laughs the Columbus, GA, native. "I try to act mad most of the time so people won't say that. I guess I still look like a baby, but at least I look like a mean baby! I'm basically just a friendly type of fellow. If I'm not laughing and smiling, that's not the real Brentson Buckner. I try to cover it up sometime so I can live up to that tough image, but usually the real me comes out."

Buckner is already in the top 10 in Clemson history in career sacks.

Linebacker Tim Jones agrees. "Brentson likes to try to show people that he is a big dog, but inside, he is a caring person who respects other people and cares about them. Everybody who knows him and plays with him knows what he's really like inside."

Like his baby face, being an English major is another part of Brentson Buckner that belies the image of the tough jock. Buckner admits that when he walks into a literature class, his classmates usually think he has taken the wrong turn somewhere and ended up in the wrong classroom. But to Brentson Buckner, this is Much Ado about Nothing.

"People are surprised that I'm an English major," he says. "They think that someone of my size, who puts so much work into being physical and tough on the football field wouldn't be sensitive enough to appreciate literature. But I enjoy the finer things in life too."

Buckner also enjoys wreaking havoc on the football field, again bringing the word "tempest" to mind. According to Webster's dictionary, a tempest is "an extensive current of wind rushing with great velocity and violence" or a "violent tumult or commotion," also fitting descriptions of the player who ranks eighth in Clemson history in career sacks and ninth in tackles for loss. But football As You Like It for Brentson Buckner is not a pursuit of records and glory.

"Football is a game and games are supposed to be fun," Buckner continues. "When I'm out there, I'm hyped up and I'm intense, but I'm not the type of player that goes around banging my head against a locker, or having somebody slap me before a game to get pumped. When I get to the point that I have to do things like that to be motivated, it's time for me to quit. Football is fun, like a big party. Just because I'm big and physical, doesn't mean I don't have fun. I'm usually laughing out there on the field. My personal goals are not to set records. They aren't a big deal to me. My goal is to go out every day and play hard and have fun and win. I love the competition."

But once again, as in the works of the Bard of Avon, that fun-loving attitude on the field may often fool onlookers into thinking Buckner doesn't take his sport seriously. Fellow defensive lineman LaMarick Simpson says this of the senior leader of the 1993 defense: "Sometimes you think Brentson is just playing around and having fun and then you realize how aware he is of everything that is going on on that football field. He is a man of the game. He's so laid back, it surprises everybody sometimes how much knowledge he has, but on most plays, he knows what is going to happen."

Just as Clemson's literary giant lacks little in the size and strength department, he is also not lacking in confidence. "I know I'm good," he laughs. "I compare myself to Michael Dean and William Perry because I have speed and strength. But sometimes beneath the surface, I have doubts about my abilities. The days when I start to question just how good of a football player I really am, I just go out and work harder to reassure myself. Something in me will make me play a little bit harder than I think my body is capable of and take it up to the next level. If I tell myself that no man playing football is better than me, I will be a better player. In reality, there might be better players, but I'm going to keep telling myself that I'm the best and trying to keep my level of play up. Even if I have a bad game, the next week, I'm going to still tell myself that I'm the best.

"Success in football only comes from working hard, but years down the road, people remember you not because you worked hard, but because you were the best. So I can't just rely on my God-given ability, I have to work hard if I want to be successful now. But I have to try to be the best if I want to make a lasting impression."

It would seem that a man with Brentson Buckner's size, strength, speed, and ability would have always known that football was his calling. But in fact, his career almost became A Comedy of Errors as he almost wasn't able to play football because of his size. "I couldn't play until I was in junior high," he recalls. "I was too big to play Pop Warner football because of the weight limits. I was nine years old, but my weight would have put me with the 13 year olds, so my mother and father wouldn't let me play. I was a little fat kid, but I had athletic ability that surprised people, including myself."

The fact that within a year he will have a college degree is also something that has come as somewhat of a surprise to Buckner. He plans to finish his coursework and graduate next spring, with a bachelor of art's degree in English. "I never pictured myself graduating from college," Buckner says. "My goal was like a lot of other inner city youths: to go into the army. That was the only way out that I could see. I had planned to finish high school, go to the military, and get a car. That's about as far as I looked ahead. I don't know how I pictured myself in the military, because when I was in ROTC, I always got demerits because I didn't take orders very well.

"Football became my way out and up. I don't think I could have lived back in the times Shakespeare wrote about because then, everything was based on how much money you had or who you were kin to. There wasn't a chance for a person to work hard and improve his life. That's what I have tried to do and will keep trying to do."

Buckner admits that along with his baby face, he has also had some immature ways that he has had to curb as he grows older. "I have always been very curious," he says with a grin. "One time when I was five years old, I wanted to see what it was like to drive a car. So after my mom got home from work, I went out and got in the car and knocked the emergency brake down. I thought I could drive it, but it just went in reverse and rolled into a ditch.

"I also used to play with matches a lot. One day, a friend and I were playing in some woods behind our apartment building and we lit some matches and the wind blew it and started a fire. The fire spread and they had to call the fire trucks and everything. They never found out who did it. In fact, I didn't even tell my mom about it until about three years ago.

"When I got to Clemson, I was young and I had to learn to control my emotions. Where I grew up, when something didn't go your way, you spoke on it. You didn't back down. I had to learn to keep my mouth shut sometimes and that some things are better off not said. When I say something, I want it to be positive."

Buckner has learned that lesson well, according to head strength and conditioning coach Gary Wade. "Brentson has turned out to be quite a leader down here in the weight room," Wade says. "I feel very positive about the role he plays in motivating the other players. He knows from personal experience that hard work is the key to success. He requires everyone to do it. When he sees someone else not doing what it takes to win, he takes the initiative to get after him. He really does a lot of coaching for us."

The curiosity of the young Brentson Buckner showed itself in the more mature version last year, when the hefty tackle accepted a plane flight from a sports agent while trying to decide whether or not to leave Clemson for the professional ranks. But after changing his mind about leaving Clemson, Buckner admitted his mistake and took a game's suspension as a punishment. But All's Well That Ends Well for Buckner, as he looks forward to the rest of his senior season.

"I would love to have the money of an NFL player, but that's not what is important to me right now," he says. "My first goal is to graduate and I am going to do that. My second goal is to help Clemson be the best football team it can be and I am going to do whatever it takes to do that.

Buckner's quickness gives him pro potential.

"Records aren't a big deal either, that stuff will come."

So after this season or after his professional football career is over, what will Brentson Buckner do? He may just follow in the footsteps of Shakespeare himself and become a writer. It is highly unlikely that he will pen sonnets on even tragedies, but he would like to become a scribe nonetheless.

"If I could be anything, I think I would be a sports journalist," Buckner says. "Then I could write my own program article. If I was writing a story about myself, I would entitle it, 'Brentson Buckner: The Man or the Myth?' I would start off writing about what people believe about Brentson Buckner, the myth part. The person on the football field, the person getting the sacks, the big guy that wears number 89. Then I would write about the real Brentson Buckner, the man part. The regular guy who enjoys literature and taking walks and normal things like that. And what would I conclude about who the real Brentson Buckner is? You'd better wait and buy the book!"

Buckner has studied economics as well as English.

Dr. Max Lennon

Clemson University President Max Lennon's ambition is to be president of the nation's top technologically-oriented land grant university. And he doesn't plan to leave campus to achieve that goal. Because that's the vision Lennon has for Clemson: not to be "one of the best," but to be better at what it does than any other school.

To achieve the vision, Lennon has brought the business world's concepts of total quality management and strategic planning to the academic arena. He hopes these concepts will help reduce bureaucracy, increase involvement of students, faculty and staff in the management of the university, increase diversity, and create an atmosphere of a community of scholars.

"The vision statement that has emerged from the strategic planning process—to become the nation's leading technologically-oriented land-grant university—sets a challenging course for this institution's development: to become the best in our league," he has said.

It is this commitment to excellence that has enabled Lennon to lead Clemson to new heights during his seven years as president. The Lennon presidency has seen the completion of the most successful campaign in the university's, and the state's, history; unprecedented growth in research, topping $100 million in annual expenditures last year; and an ongoing program of campus revitalization that balances the university's desire for technological excellence, cultural awareness, and historic preservation.

Lennon came to Clemson from Ohio State University, where he had been president for agriculture administration and executive dean for agriculture, home economics and natural resources. He also served on the Ohio State Faculty Senate and co-chaired the Governor's Commission on Agriculture.

Previously, he had served as dean of the College of Agriculture at Ohio State, director of the Agricultural Experiment Station at the University of Missouri, and as associate dean and director of research in the College of Agricultural Sciences at Texas Tech University.

Lennon is a native of Columbus County, NC, and earned his bachelor's degree and doctorate from N.C. State University, where he began his teaching career.

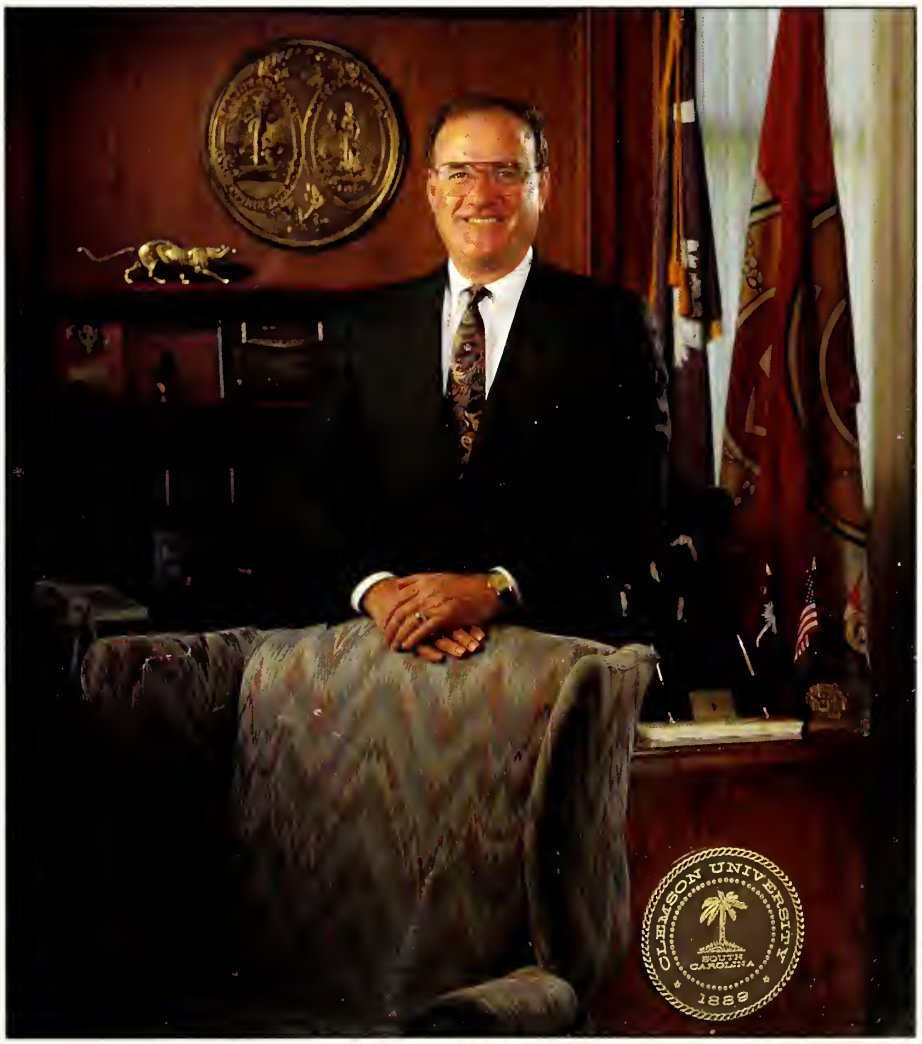
The Clemson president has been active in a number of state and national organizations. He is one of 13 university presidents and chancellors appointed to a nationwide committee to study the role of public service at land-grant and other public institutions.

The Outreach Futures Committee, a product of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, is charged with rethinking the concept of Extension-type activities at public colleges and universities.

"The traditional Extension model has been enormously effective at increasing agricultural productivity and rural development in this country, and now we need to modernize traditional programs and to look at harnessing that same type of energy to focus on other community and educational needs, such as health, natural resource management, and K-12 education," Lennon said. "Clemson is recognized as a national leader in developing a new outreach model through programs in local leadership development, community-based education and creative programming for young people and their families."

In addition to the Outreach committee post, Lennon serves on the organization's Commission on Veterinary Medicine and is a member of the Congressional Office of Technology Assessment's Advisory Council. He is also a member of the Council of Presidents, the S.C. Research Authority Board, the Chamber of Commerce Board, the National Dropout Prevention Fund Board, the Farm Foundation Board, the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS) Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics and the SACS Executive Council. Other Board appointments include First Union, Delta Woodside and Duke Power.

In 1991, he received the Thomas Green Clemson Medallion, the highest public honor given by the university. Lennon is married to Ruth Carter Lennon. This past year, they joined an elite group of people who can call themselves "Clemson Parents" when both children, Daniel Ray and Robin, received degrees from the university.



Dr. Max Lennon has led Clemson to new heights during his seven years as president.

Ken Hatfield

Hatfield played on a national championship team in college, served as an assistant coach for five top-20 teams and has been the head coach for seven top-20 clubs.

During his career, Ken Hatfield has shown his ability to win, regardless of the conference, the competition, or the program. He is one of only three active coaches to lead three different programs to top-20 seasons and is the only active Division I coach to gain 10-win seasons at three different schools. He has also ranked among the nation's elite in terms of overall winning percentage over the last decade, as his .750 winning percentage over the last 10 years ranks sixth among active coaches who have coached at Division I schools in each year of that time frame. His last 10 teams have competed in nine bowl games and he has produced seven top-20 clubs in the last decade.

When Hatfield took over the Clemson program prior to the 1990 season, he was faced with the challenge of continuing the tradition of excellence set in the eighties (only Nebraska and Miami had fewer losses in that time frame than Clemson). Hatfield has met the challenge, posting a 24-10-1 mark for the Tigers in his first three seasons, two top-20 finishes and the 1991 ACC Championship. The 1991 team was the first Tiger team since 1982 to have just one loss in regular season play.

The victory over Illinois in the 1991 Hall of Fame Bowl made Hatfield the first Clemson coach to win 10 games in his first year and his .833 winning percentage was the best for a first-year Clemson coach since 1900 when John Heisman was 6-0. The 1990 season included six wins over teams with winning records. Only national champion Georgia Tech had more.

Hatfield was just the eighth coach in the last 13 years to take a team to a top-10 AP final ranking in his first year with the program.

But Hatfield's impressive debut at Clemson was no big surprise to those who have followed his career. He has enjoyed success throughout his involvement with the sport of football, as a player and coach.

As a player, he helped Arkansas face every challenge in 1964, when the Razorbacks had an 11-0 season and won the national title. As an assistant coach at Tennessee and Florida, he molded countless players into top-notch athletes who competed for Southeastern Conference titles, played in seven bowl games in a 10-year period, and ranked in the final top 20 five times. As a head coach, he took a dormant Air Force program to a number-13 national ranking and a pair of bowl wins. He continued to meet the challenges at Arkansas, his alma mater, guiding the Razorbacks to back-to-back Southwest Conference titles, something that had not been done at Arkansas since Hatfield was a player.

Hatfield has had five 10-win seasons in his career and has accomplished that task at three different schools. He is the only active coach and one of just two in the history of the game (Dan Devine is the other) to have taken three different schools to a 10-win season.

Hatfield has an overall record of 105-59-3 (.638), but he has won 75 percent of his games over the last 10 seasons (91-29-2). At Arkansas, he posted a record of 55-17-1 over six seasons, a .760 winning percentage. That percentage is second best in Southwest Conference history as only Darrell Royal (Texas 1957-76) had a better percentage.

The native of Helena, Arkansas, played in two bowl games with the Razorbacks, coached in seven post-season games as an assistant and the 1992 Citrus Bowl marked the 10th in which he has been the head coach. Seven times he has coached a team to a top-20 final ranking in the AP poll, and he played on two other top 15 teams.

Hatfield-coached clubs have excelled offensively and defensively, but they have been particularly successful in rushing offense and defense. Each of his last 11 teams have finished in the top 20 nationally in rushing offense, including eight top-10 finishes. This includes last year's team, which averaged 257 yards a game and ranked sixth nationally.

Two of his last four Arkansas teams finished in the top three in the country in turnover margin, including his 1988 team that was first in the nation (Clemson was second that same year). Defensively, his clubs have finished in the top 15 in the nation in rushing defense six of the last seven years. The Tigers were ranked first in the nation in total defense, second in rushing defense, and second in scoring defense at the end of the 1990 regular season.

Clemson ranked first in the nation in rushing defense and fourth in total defense in the 1991 season.

Hatfield has coached in four major conferences and with independent schools, giving him a diverse background in the finer points of the game. It is one reason he was named the third best teaching coach in college football by Inside Sports magazine in 1990.

Hatfield began his coaching career immediately after graduation. In the fall of 1965, he served as an assistant coach at Helena-West Helena High School in Arkansas. In 1966, he moved to West Point, where he served as freshman coach for two seasons.

After the two-year stint at Army, he served as an assistant coach at Tennessee for three years (1968-70). The Volunteers went to post-season bowls all three seasons (including two major bowls), won a conference title and ranked in the final top 20 of the AP poll all three seasons, including a number-four ranking in 1970.

In 1971, Hatfield began a seven-year stint at the University of Florida, spending four seasons as a defensive backfield coach and three as an offensive backfield mentor. Florida played in four bowl games during his career in Gainesville and two more Gator teams finished in the AP top 20, including the 1974 team that played Nebraska in the Sugar Bowl.

Hatfield became offensive coordinator at the Air Force Academy under current New England Patriots Head Coach Bill Parcells in 1978. A year later, Parcells was wooed to the New York Giants and Hatfield became the Falcons' head coach. The Air Force program had not had a winning season since 1973. But by his fourth season, Hatfield had an eight-game winner, led Air Force to its first-ever victory over Notre Dame, and had taken the Falcons to a post-season bowl for the first time since 1971.

In 1983, Hatfield was named national Coach-of-the-Year by the Football Coaches Association (Bobby Dodd Award) after leading Air Force to a 10-2 season that included wins over Notre Dame, Navy and a bowl victory over Mississippi. It was the Academy's first-ever win over Notre Dame in South Bend.

The next year, Hatfield succeeded Lou Holtz at Arkansas, where he would take his alma mater to 55 wins in six seasons, six bowl appearances and four final top-15 rankings. His 1985 club finished with a 10-2 mark and number-12 national ranking, the Razorbacks' first top-20 finish since 1982. Four times the Razorbacks rallied from fourth quarter deficits to gain victory.

The 1986 campaign was another year of success with highlight victories over a nationally ranked Texas A&M club and the Razorbacks' first win in 20 years at Texas. Arkansas advanced to the Orange Bowl and finished 15th in the final AP poll.

Arkansas won the 1988 and 1989 Southwest Conference Championship. He was named Southwest Conference Coach-of-the-Year in 1988 as he took the Razorbacks to the league title and a 10-0 start. Miami (FL) defeated Arkansas 18-16 in the Orange Bowl to stop the streak. Seven players off the 1988 club (all recruited by Hatfield) were drafted by the NFL, an Arkansas single draft record.

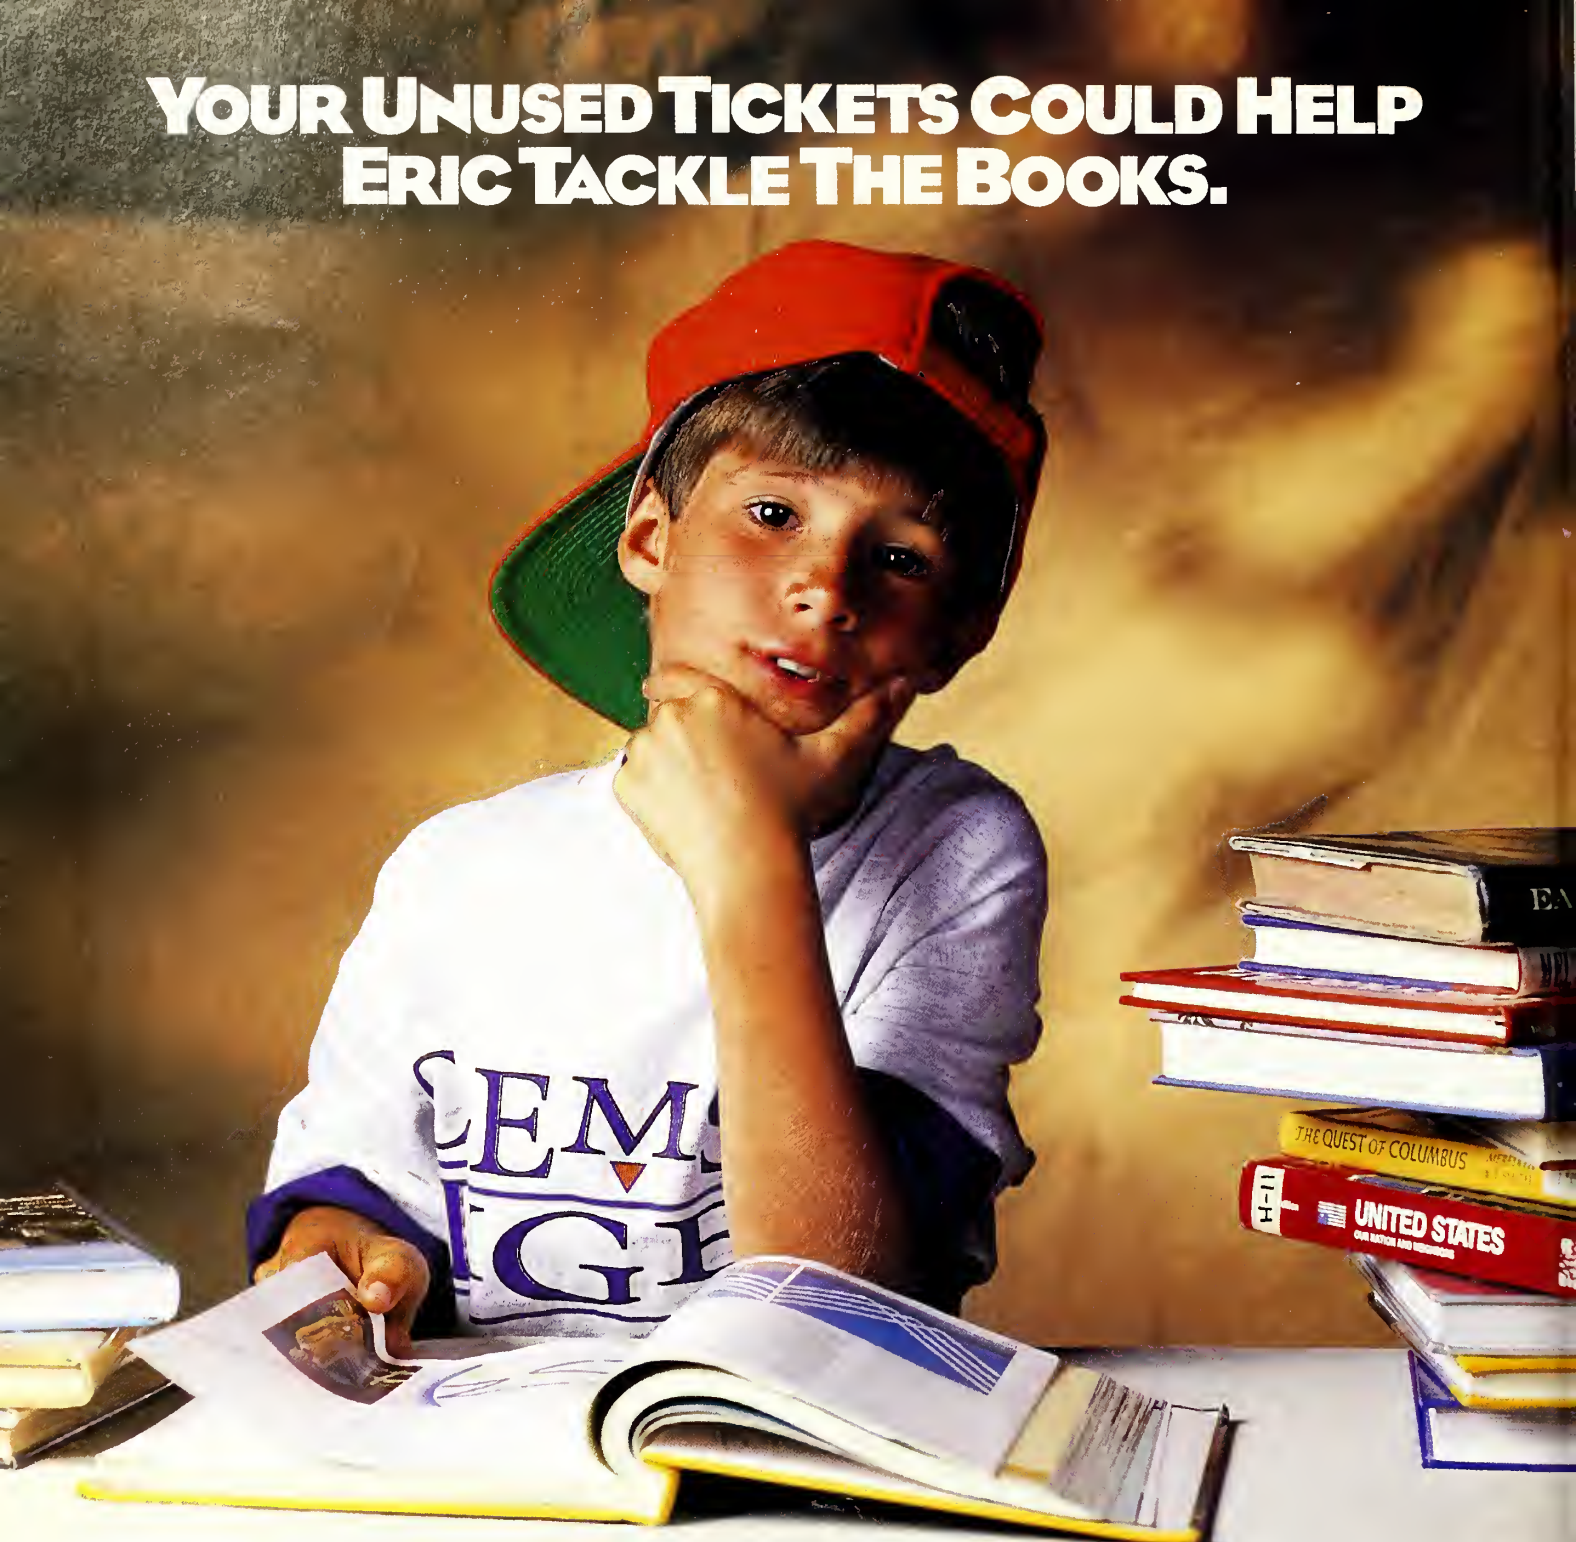
After the 1989 team's 10-2 ledger and second straight SWC championship, Hatfield was named Southwest Conference Coach-of-the-Decade by the Houston Post. Included in the victories was a triumph over a top-15 Houston team and Heisman Trophy winner Andre Ware.

Hatfield played for three years at Arkansas (1962-64) and he was a starter on the National Championship team of 1964. A defensive back by trade, he earned his fame as the nation's top punt returner in 1963 and 1964. He also finished as the runner-up as a sophomore and is still the only college football player to finish in the top two in the nation in punt returns three straight seasons.

An accounting major who earned his diploma in the spring of 1965, Hatfield was an Academic All-American in 1964 and was the recipient of the Swartz Award, presented annually to the top student-athlete at Arkansas. The 1964 All-SWC selection was inducted into the Arkansas Sports Hall of Fame in 1989. He is married to the former Sandy Wright of Kennett, Missouri.

Hatfield has taken three different schools to 10-win seasons, the only active Division I coach who can make that claim.

YOUR UNUSED TICKETS COULD HELP ERIC TACKLE THE BOOKS.



Eric attends a Homework Center – a place that helps him when Mom and Dad can't. And when he works especially hard, he can win wonderful prizes – like tickets to a Clemson home game that he might otherwise never get to see.

Hundreds of Homework Centers across the nation focus on keeping struggling students from becoming dropouts. In actuality, they're doing a lot more than that. Many hardworking students are bringing their grades up from F's to A's, and in one South Carolina elementary school expulsions declined from 38 to 4 after the centers opened.

Duke Power is proud to help support such an important and effective program. We invite you to help too. Simply donate football or basketball season tickets you're unable to use or purchase extra tickets to contribute to the Homework Centers for use as prizes. Send them at least two weeks before game day to: John Geer, Duke Power Company, P.O. Box 1745, Clemson, SC 29633.

If you do, you'll be helping students like Eric tackle the books today so that tomorrow they can tackle the world.

Clemson Sports Program

In 1992-93 Clemson had seven of its athletic teams finish in the Top 20, while three Clemson athletes won four National Championships. Clemson had 24 first, second or third-team All-Americans in 1992-93, just three away from the most in Clemson history.

Clemson teams laid claims to three ACC Championships in 1992-93 with the men's track program claiming two of those titles and the baseball team taking the third. Ten Clemson teams advanced to postseason play during the 1992-93 academic year and NCAA postseason team bids were received by four teams.

The spring sports enjoyed the most success as three of the four men's spring sports teams finished in the top 20. Golf finished fourth, men's outdoor track finished 10th, and baseball finished 16th. The women's tennis squad posted a number-12 national ranking.

The highest national finish was posted by the men's indoor track squad as the Tigers finished second for the second straight year. Three of Clemson's four national championship performances came from the men's track program and head coach Bob Pollock was named the ACC Coach-of-the-Year for indoor and outdoor track.

The Tiger golf team finished fourth nationally and all five Clemson golfers who competed at NCAA's were named honorable mention All-American or better. Baseball claimed Clemson's third ACC Championship of the 1992-93 year and advanced to the NCAA Mideast Regional. The wrestling team had its highest finish ever with a number-13 final ranking, while Sam Henson captured the National Championship at the 118-pound weight class. The men's soccer squad finished the season with a number-19 national ranking.

The women's basketball team made its sixth consecutive NCAA Tournament appearance. Women's tennis coach Andy Johnston was named the ACC Women's Tennis Coach-of-the-Year after leading his squad to its highest national finish since 1986. Women's outdoor track boasted six All-America performances.

Clemson teams were also a rousing success in the classroom in 1992-93, with a record 122 student-athletes making a 3.0 or better. Hurdler Anthony Knight was Clemson's top all-around student-athlete in 1992-93, winning the ACC's Jim Weaver Award and received an NCAA postgraduate scholarship. Soccer goalie Jaro Zawislan, a second-team All-South selection in soccer, was named a second-team ISAA All-America Academic selection.

IPTAY

Traditions are something that don't happen overnight, they evolve over a number of years. One tradition at Clemson that is going strong and heading into its 60th year is IPTAY. The IPTAY Scholarship Foundation, is known throughout the country for its faithful and generous contributions by its supporters. A recent USA Today article called IPTAY the best-known organization of its kind in the nation. The article noted that at a time when college athletics costs are rising IPTAY continues to lead the way in supporting athletic scholarships at Clemson. IPTAY plays a major role in insuring that all 18 of the varsity sports at Clemson are given the maximum amount of scholarships allowed by the NCAA.

Thanks in part to IPTAY's contributions, the 1992-93 academic year proved to be another banner one for Clemson athletics. Seven of the 18 athletic teams finished the year in the top 20 of their respective sports. Twenty-four Clemson student-athletes were named All-Americans. There were three ACC Championship teams during the year from Clemson (men's indoor track, men's outdoor track and baseball) with 56 Tiger athletes earning All-ACC honors. Three Tigers also won four individual national championships during the year, as Michael Green won the 55 and 100 meters and Wesley Russell won the 400 meters indoors for the men's track program, and Sam Henson won the 118-pound wrestling championship. That total marked the most ever in a single sports year at Clemson.

Tiger athletes also excelled in the classroom during the 1992-93 academic year, with 122 student-athletes earning a 3.0 or better for the spring semester. Clemson's Anthony Knight, a hurdler for the track squad, was named a recipient of a $5,000 NCAA Post-Graduate scholarship, one of the highest academic honors given by the NCAA. He also received the ACC's Jim Weaver Award earlier in the year, another postgraduate scholarship that is one of the conference's highest academic accolades.

The success of the Clemson athletic program comes during a time when the integrity and accountability of the academic progress of student-athletes are receiving national attention. IPTAY has been a large part of that success by being committed to the student-athlete.

IPTAY is recognized as one of the oldest, largest and most successful athletic fundraising organizations in America. IPTAY was the first athletic fundraising organization in the country to top the two, three, four, and five-million dollar marks in annual donations.

In 1934, Dr. Rupert Fike founded IPTAY with a very simple purpose in mind: IPTAY provides funds for athletic scholarships. Since 1934 IPTAY has certainly met Fike's goal, providing scholarships for over 5,000 student-athletes, trainers, and managers.

IPTAY currently provides the funds for tutorial programs staffed by trained academic advisors, assisted by graduate and undergraduate students. This support is intended to insure that all student-athletes are given the opportunity to earn their degree while participating in athletics.

Bert Henderson, Thurman McLamb, George Bennett and Bob Mahony supervise Clemson's IPTAY Scholarship Foundation.

IPTAY donors have also played an intricate role in the "Campaign for Clemson," a long-range fundraising project of the University. The University's original goal of 62 million dollars was surpassed with the next goal of 78 million also being surpassed in the campaign that ended on June 30, 1992. IPTAY provided three million dollars with ongoing opportunities for donors to be part of the Vickery Hall Academic Learning Center.

Vickery Hall, located on East Campus is a 27,000 square foot facility that houses the tutoring and advising programs for student-athletes. The building contains various-sized study and tutoring rooms used for individual study as well as small-group instruction. Computer facilities, an office/reception area for the advising staff and an auditorium, also are contained in Vickery Hall.

The generous support of 16,274 loyal donors to IPTAY has allowed the organization to go beyond the funding of athletic scholarships by providing the financial basis for many of the unparalled athletic facilities at Clemson

Since 1978, IPTAY has provided the funding for $34 million of capital improvements in the area of athletics. These improvements include the expansion of the football stadium, the newly renovated baseball facility (Tiger Field), the new outdoor track, the indoor tennis facility, the soccer stadium, the weight room, the new golf practice area, a new cross-country course, and the IPTAY/Ticket office facility.

IPTAY is also proud to provide the funding for Tiger Band. Each year IPTAY establishes financial support for travel, uniforms and equipment for this integral part of the Clemson athletic program.

While IPTAY is primarily concerned with athletic fundraising, the mission of Clemson University has not been overlooked. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Endowment was created to help meet the need for more academic scholarships for nonathletes who are highly qualified academically. This scholarship endowment is funded by certain company gifts that are made as a result of employee contributions to IPTAY. In addition, the athletic department has made generous contributions to the endowment from athletic revenues.

The IPTAY Academic Fund is presently the largest scholarship endowment of its kind at Clemson providing $1.9 million in funds, currently benefitting more than 50 students. IPTAY's support extends to all of the student body.

The tremendous support of IPTAY is due, in large part, to the organizational makeup that allows donors to be as close to IPTAY as they are to their local IPTAY leadership. Each of South Carolina's 46 counties has an IPTAY County chairman, and every county is allotted an IPTAY representative for every 35 donors.

One important way IPTAY keeps in touch with its membership is the annual Clemson Club meeting held in April and May of each year. These meetings, which feature different coaches and administrators are just one of the ways of making the local IPTAY members feel close to Clemson.

Clemson University will continue to be recognized and respected on the national level athletically and academically with the full support of IPTAY. IPTAY will continue to be successful because a loyal commitment to Clemson University is a way of life in the hearts of Clemson alumni and friends.

Jeff Bryant

by Tim Bourret

Never has a Clemson football program story been so prophetic.

If you are a longtime Clemson fan, dig out the Wake Forest program from the 1981 season. (We know you have it, Clemson fans save everything from that year.) Defensive tackle Jeff Bryant was on the cover that Halloween Saturday and was the subject of a feature by sports information student assistant Jeff Rhodes.

Near the end of his story Rhodes quoted Bryant about his love for Clemson and the color and pageantry of a Tiger football weekend. He said his one regret as a Clemson football player was that he never got to tailgate and go to Tigerama. Rhodes concluded the story by saying that Bryant was an excellent pro prospect and probably wouldn't have the opportunity to see Tigerama or a Clemson home game until the 1990s because the NFL would tie up his fall weekends.

Well, here we are in 1993 and Jeff Bryant still hasn't seen Tigerama. No, he hasn't lost his love for his alma mater. The situation is quite the contrary. Just as Rhodes predicted, Bryant is still in the NFL.

An All-American on Clemson's national championship team of 1981, Bryant was the number-six pick of the NFL draft, the second highest selection in Clemson history. He has proven to be one of the best selections in the Seattle Seahawks history as he is still going strong in his 12th season as a starter.

Heading into 1993 Bryant was second in Seahawks history in sacks (62), sixth in total tackles (640), second in recovered fumbles (11), fifth in forced fumbles (12), fourth in games started (152) and fourth in games played (159). In 11 seasons he has averaged 59 tackles and 5.5 sacks per season. In 1984 he had a career high 14.5 sacks and was a second-team All-AFC selection.

"I've been blessed," said Bryant when referring to his success and longevity as an everyday player in one of the world's most dangerous occupations. "Staying in shape year round would probably be the most important thing. When I am in Atlanta in the off season I work with a trainer. I run two miles a day, play basketball and work with weights."

Bryant showed this outstanding work ethic during his Clemson career and was named a strength All-American in addition to his on-field All-America status. He was always in shape, always ready to perform and always ready to make the big play.

While many Clemson fans remember Perry Tuttle's touchdown reception against Nebraska in the Orange Bowl as the most memorable play during the national championship season, others might recall a defensive play by Bryant. It was certainly the most heads up play of the memorable season.

Number-two ranked Clemson was meeting number-eight ranked North Carolina in Chapel Hill in the first meeting of top 10 ACC teams in history. Late in the fourth quarter of the nationally televised game Clemson was leading 10-8, but the Tar Heels were driving for a winning field goal. On a first-and-10 from the North Carolina 40, Tar Heel quarterback Scott Stankavage dropped back to attempt a flair pass to Alan Burrus in the right flat. Burrus could not control the toss and made no attempt to cover the bouncing pigskin.

In fact, no one made an attempt to chase after the ball...no one except for Jeff Bryant. Officials ruled the ball a lateral and Bryant had the ball against his stomach with just 57 seconds left in the game. "For me there are many memories of that season," said Bryant. "But that play at North Carolina stands out for me. It looked like a lateral to me, but I guess none of the other players saw it from the same angle as I did.

"I just thought I should hustle over there and if the referee said it was a pass, then so be it. The closer I got to the ball, it occurred to me that the referee still had not blown the whistle. When the referee signalled Clemson ball I knew we had the game."

It is this type of hustle and work ethic that has made Bryant one of the top all-around defensive linemen in the NFL. His knowledge of the game makes him a versatile performer. "What is great about Jeff Bryant is that he can play all four positions," said Seattle defensive line coach Tommy Brasher. "Sometimes I wonder where we would be without Jeff Bryant."

"There aren't many people in the NFL who can play four positions," said Seattle defensive tackle Joe Nash, who has played with Bryant since 1982. "There are even fewer players who can start at four positions, but Jeff Bryant has and still can."

In addition to his versatility, Bryant has something else going for him. "Where Jeff Bryant is special is in his heart," said Brasher. "He doesn't know anything about quitting."

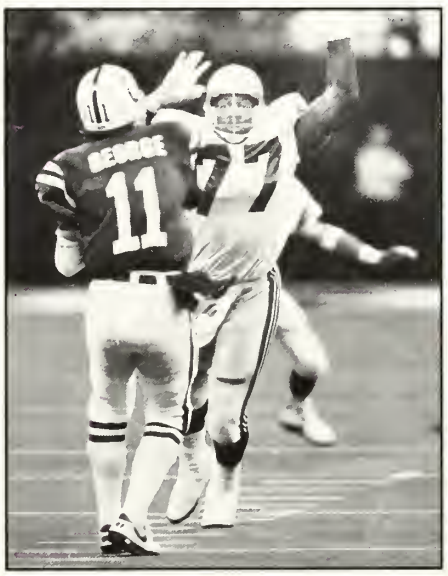
Defensive coordinator Rusty Tillman has a special bond with Bryant, who has carried his Clemson nickname, "The Boogie Man" to Seattle. "As a coach, you develop a bond with people like Boogie. the bond has developed in battle. I will always give Boogie the benefit of the doubt, and I will help him in any way I can for the rest of his life. I will do everything I can for that man because he has done everything he could for me and this team. That's a bond that cannot be broken."

Bryant also has a bond with Clemson and still follows the Tigers. He is actually one of three former Clemson players in Seattle. Doug Thomas and Tracy Johnson are also members of the Seahawks. "We have some ACC players on this team and that adds a lot to it. When we play Virginia it is something I look forward to because Ray Roberts (Seattle teammate) played there. Last year's game was really special (coming from 28 points down to win in the final minutes). I always follow my alma mater. I will always want Clemson to do well."

Bryant realizes he can't play football forever, but he does see a few more years in his future. "As long as I am in good health and feel I am contributing to the team I would like to keep playing. I love the game. It has been good to me.

"I've been fortunate to go to a great school, play on a National Championship team, and now have a long pro career. I can't see getting too far away from it when I do retire. I don't think I'll go into coaching, but you never know. I would like to be involved with the NFL in some way."

Jeff Rhodes may not be that great a prophet afterall. It may be the next century before Jeff Bryant attends Tigerama.



Whether it be Buck Belue in 1981 or Jeff George in 1991, former Clemson All-American Jeff Bryant has been chasing enemy quarterbacks with remarkable fervor.

Singing Tigers

by Annabelle Vaughan

Ah, the sounds of college football! The crash of helmets knocking into each other at full speed, the thud of shoulder pad hitting shoulder pad, the grunts and groans as bodies meet at the line of scrimmage, the officials' whistles, the roar of the fans, the cheers of the cheerleaders, and the songs of the band. All of these somewhat cacaphonous noises blend to become what is sweet music to a college football fan's ears.

Today, the Fighting Tigers are hoping to roar mightily against the Yellow Jackets of Georgia Tech. You can bet that in today's contest you will see Jason Davis battling to bring down a reception, Rodney Blunt and Derrick Witherspoon pounding through defenders trying to get that first down, and Brentson Buckner, Warren Forney and Marvin Cross seeking to wreak havoc in the Tech backfield. These hard-nosed players will add crashes and thuds and grunts and groans to the other sounds of the sport.

But come tomorrow morning, the Fighting Tigers may be singing a different tune. Because on some Sundays, many of the Fighting Tigers from the day before, become the Singing Tigers at a local church. And the sounds they make on Sunday morning are much more harmonious as they lift their voices in song.

Several years ago, a group of Clemson football players started their own gospel choir, and "the Singing Tigers" have since become a tradition for Ken Hatfield's team. The group was the idea of Reverend Curtis Hill of the New Holly Light Baptist Church in Pendleton, SC, just a stone's throw away from the Clemson campus. Hill asked several players to sing at the church five or six years ago, and every season since, a group from the football team has performed periodically at the church.

The 1993 group includes tailbacks Derrick Witherspoon and Rodney Blunt, Clemson's leading rusher each of the past two seasons; wide receiver Jason Davis; defensive tackles Arthur Byrd, Marvin Cross and Warren Forney, who is also an Academic All-ACC performer; and outside linebacker Darnell Stephens. The group does not perform that often during the football season for obvious reasons, but they made many appearances at New Holly Light during the winter and spring.

A couple of years ago, the Singing Tigers got the attention of the national media. The group was featured by not only local television stations, but also ESPN and the ACC Television network. Recently an article about the group was published in Sidelines, a publication of the College Football Association.

Former members of the group include Al Richard, who now works as an engineer with the Savannah River Plant, Stacy Fields, also an engineer with the Dow Chemical Company, Kenzil Jackson, David Davis, and Ronald Williams.

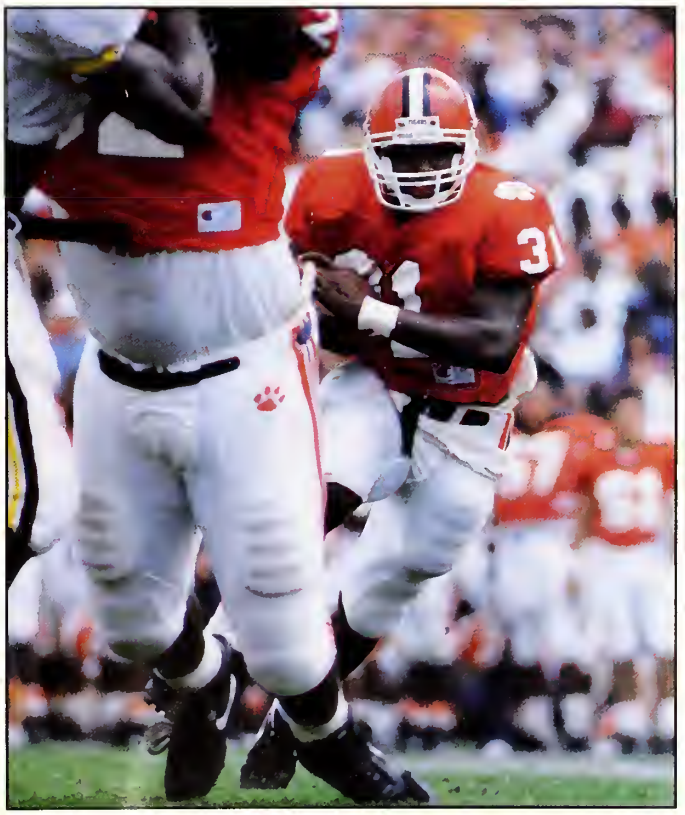
Reverend Hill and Dora Scott, a member of the church known to the team as "Mama Scott," have organized the group's practices and performances since its inception. But this season, Jason Davis, has assumed the responsibility of being the unofficial organizer of the Singing Tigers. "In the past, the group has only sung once or twice a semester, mainly because it has been hard for Reverend Hill and Mama Scott to get everybody together. Now, when we need to meet or practice, I just let Coach Hatfield know and he will announce at football practice that we are going to meet. I think with a litttle organization coming from our end, this group can really take off."

None of the Singing Tigers have had formal music training and only a couple can read music. But when one of the members hears a song he wants to sing, the church organist learns the music and the group learns the words. "Sometimes we have to adapt the music to fit our voices, but we pick out what we want to sing and that makes it more enjoyable," says Davis.

Reverend Hill accompanies the group in rehearsals and often performs with them as well. "We have really good support," Davis continues. "Reverend Hill and Mama Scott are there 100 percent for us. If we told them that the only time we could practice was 1:00 in the morning, they would be there to open that church and sing with us."

Davis believes that instead of being known as just a "bunch of football players who sing," the group is beginning to be recognized for its talent. "Any time we are on the program, people from all different churches in the area come to the church. It is a novelty for football players to be singers too. We don't have any professional singers in the group, but we do have some guys with talent. Most importantly, everyone in the Singing Tigers has a faith we want to express and we are making a joyful noise to the Lord when we sing. We want to be taken seriously as a Christian choir. We know who gave us all the ability to play football and this is a way to give something back."

Rodney Blunt agrees. "We don't have any formal training and we don't have an orchestra to accompany us. What we have is a willingness to serve the Lord and this is the way we do it. We also have a lot of fun."



Jason Davis and Derrick Witherspoon are both members of the Singing Tigers, a group of Clemson gridders who show a different side of their personalities on Sundays throughout the year.

Darren Calhoun

by Annie Verhoeven

Some people say that talk is cheap, yet, others say that talking is the pathway out of all problems. While Darren Calhoun doesn't necessarily follow either one of these philosophies, this quiet linebacker is far from boastful when it comes to his talk about football and academics.

"I think I am doing pretty well," says Calhoun quietly when asked about his play and practice this season. That is it—no cockiness, no arrogance, no gloating.

Calhoun, one of the more consistent players on this year's squad, has played or started in all 37 games in his Clemson career. Terry Smith is the only other senior who has played in all of the games in their four-year careers. Last season, Calhoun was the eighth-leading tackler on the squad while in for only 33 percent of the Tigers total defensive plays, and was second on the team in plays per tackle. Calhoun is also known for causing a fumble last season against UT Chattanooga that led to a Michael Barber 91-yard touchdown run, the 12th longest play in Clemson history. But despite his steady and strong play, Calhoun doesn't speak a lot about his football.

"I'm not much of a vocal person—I just really don't talk that much," says Calhoun when describing himself. "I just try to go out to the field and do things right, and maybe the younger guys will follow my lead."

When it came to following Clemson football, Calhoun didn't pay any attention while growing up.

"I guess I just really didn't like all of that orange," he laughs. But now the 6-3, 237-pound inside linebacker is draped in orange from head to toe every fall weekend.

"I really didn't start liking Clemson until I came up here on a visit. I had never seen or been around that many people," describes Calhoun about his first Clemson football game when he was awed by the 80,000+ orange-clad Tiger faithful.

"I was just used to playing in front of about 200 people." As a senior, Calhoun recorded more tackles than there were fans in the stands. Those couple of hundred fans who did attend the McCormick High School football games saw Calhoun record 207 tackles that season while managing to graduate at the top of his high school class.

But as with his athletic ability, Calhoun is modest about his academic achievements as well. "Academics are very important to me," he says.

Calhoun first came to Clemson on an academic scholarship because of an overload of incoming freshmen in 1989. The textile management major, who is set to graduate in December, is now looking to take some graduate classes this spring. "I hope that I'll have a good chance of finding a job in textiles around this area. I really like it around here. I like nice, laid-back places," he says quietly.

There is one topic that Calhoun does like to talk about. It is the one thing that turns the quiet, modest guy into a "talker."

"My truck," Calhoun says loud and proudly when asked about his hobbies and life away from football. "I have a 1956 Chevrolet truck. It didn't have a motor when I bought it, it only cost me $200, but I put one in and now it runs pretty well.

"I've always been interested in old cars and trucks," he continues. "People at home call this one the 'Sanford and Sons' truck, but I just call it #56 Chevy."

Totally taken off guard by this alternative side of the reticent linebacker, this writer sat amazed as Calhoun continued with his story. "Rodney (Blunt) and I raced one day home from practice last spring, and I won—blew him away in fact. But he says I cheated. You can ask him." Blunt's truck is about as old as Calhoun's and neither is capable of high speeds. Still, the competition was the objective.

"Calhoun just started talking in the shower," responds Blunt when asked about the big race down Clemson's Perimeter road. "Then everyone jumped in about how he could beat me so we both decided to go at it. The race didn't last very long, just up the hill. We never really started even," says Blunt not really answering who actually won.

"I know Calhoun is quiet, but he just loves speed. I remember one time he brought an old, hot rod car up from home. The body was old and worn out but the engine was probably bigger than the actual car. He wanted to race then but we didn't."

Despite these little sprints against friendly teammates, Calhoun actually has no aspirations to be a racecar driver. "That kind of speed is too dangerous. I almost wrecked a motorcycle and that really scared me. Actually it scared me a whole lot more than playing football ever has."

With more than half of his senior season ahead of him and graduation to follow, Calhoun is looking to rebound from his first-ever injury which kept him out of 10 days of preseason practice.

"I hate practice, but I hated being on the sideline doing nothing even more. What I really like about Clemson is the people. I have met a lot of different people here. People like John Johnson (now with the San Francisco 49ers). I could sit and listen to him tell stories all day."

Anyone who knows Darren Calhoun would hastily agree that he would rather listen to the stories of others than talk. That is, until the talk turns to trucks.

Calhoun's hobby belies his quiet personality

Fred Hoover

by Tim Bourret

In the 1940s Fred Hoover dreamed of being a football coach. College football was booming in the post-war era and many college freshmen were attracted to the glamorous grid sport.

Hoover has realized his dream of being involved with college football, in fact he has been honored by three different Halls of Fame. However, it is not due to his expertise in Xs and Os, but rather his nearly unparalleled experience in dealing with MRIs and ACLs.

When Hoover, now Clemson's assistant athletic director/head trainer, entered Florida State as a freshman in 1949 his career goals centered around becoming a coach. But, an opening for a student trainer in the Seminole athletic department became attractive from a financial standpoint. The position carried a sizeable tuition reduction.

Hoover went to work for Eddie Kwest, a graduate student who was in charge of the entire Florida State training department. That's right, a GA handled all the sports. My, how times have changed.

"I was majoring in physical education, but took a lot of pre-med courses," remembers Hoover, who is in his 35th year at Clemson, more than any other active athletic department employee. "It didn't take me long to enjoy the job and by the time I was a senior I was the head trainer."

He remained as the head man of the Seminole program in 1954, but then had to fulfill a three-year ROTC commitment. In 1957 he returned to his alma mater to complete his master's and serve as co-head trainer.

Two years later Frank Howard had an opening on his training staff. Hoover applied, accepted an offer and has been at Clemson ever since. "Before I came here Herman McGee was in charge of both the training room and the equipment. It was too much for just one person so Coach Howard created another position."

McGee and Hoover combined to run that aspect of the department through the 1960s, a task that would be impossible today. "Herman McGee was a very fine person, well qualified and a friend to all. I was fortunate to have a person like Herman to work with when I first came to Clemson."

There have been many changes in the field of athletics in the last 35 years. Coaches rely on video instead of film, and sports information offices compute statistics with computers instead of pencil and paper. But, no division within the area of athletics has changed more than athletic training.

"The medical advances in surgery and testing have had the biggest impact. Just 15 years ago when a football player suffered cartilage damage he was out for six weeks. Now, with arthroscopic surgery players are back in a couple of weeks."

This year the changing field of athletic training must deal with the implementation of the "Blood Rule," a rule that will necessitate coordination between Hoover's staff, the officials and the Clemson equipment staff.

"We will have to work with the officials to make it work," says Hoover of the rule that will force a player out of the game if he is bleeding or has blood on his jersey. "We will have to work as a team with the managers to get a player back in the game as soon as possible. We will have students prepared at all times and check the players when they are not in the game. We are going to have pre-made bandages and other devises ready to go to solve the problem as quickly as possible."

Another reason for Hoover's success has been his reliability. Hoover has never missed a Clemson football game, home or away. That is 376 consecutive games. Obviously, Hoover has been ill at times over the last 35 years, but he has always been healthy, or at least healthy enough to perform his duty on game days.

"There was a game at Auburn in 1971 when I had a strep throat on Monday and Tuesday," recalled Hoover. "But, I got some medicine and the fever broke the morning of the game. There was another time when we had a death in the family and I drove all night from Mount Vernon, IL to get back to Clemson on Saturday morning at 6:00 AM.

This unusual streak also means Hoover holds the distinction of running down the hill more than any other human. Hoover will run down the hill for the 173rd time today, and the moment is still a special event.

"I didn't know that much about the tradition when I first came to Clemson. But, I could see this was something special. As long as I am able to walk I will run down the hill."

Hoover has an outstanding percentage in reaching the bottom safely. Only once in the previous 172 contests since 1959 has he fallen. "I usually run down the side, obviously getting out of the way of the players and so I can go at my own speed. But, one game a few years back I got tripped up accidentally by a fan and I took a tumble." Still, 171 for 172 isn't a bad percentage.

Fred Hoover has run down the hill more than anyone.

Hoover is significantly involved in orchestrating the entire entrance, one of the great traditions in college football. He arranges for the buses that take the Tigers from the home locker room, around the periphery of the stadium to the top of the hill. He is very much involved in the timing of the entire event.

Running down the hill is certainly one of the more enjoyable aspects of Hoover's job, but others stand out. "Seeing players recover from an injury and succeed, that is probably the most rewarding part of it. Seeing a player overcome an injury through hard work and then watch him play on Sundays after he leaves Clemson makes you feel good inside."

Dwight Clark was an athlete who made Hoover smile for many years. Clark had a shoulder injury during 1978, an injury that forced him to miss the team's only loss of the year, at Georgia. But, he rehabilitated under Hoover's guidance and came back to help the Tigers to a number-six national ranking. Of course, Clark continued to work hard in the off season, was drafted by the San Francisco 49ers and played on two Super Bowl Championship teams.

Teamwork between an injured athlete and the athletic trainer is important and Clark's willingness to rehabilitate, something akin to coachability, made the difference. This teamwork requires dedication on the part of the trainer. Hoover is in the office at 8:45 AM every Sunday morning treating the players who were injured in the previous day's game. The first treatments last until 10:00 AM, then he is back at 12:30 PM and will work in the training room until 6:00 PM.

Monday morning the process continues as Hoover opens his doors at 6:25 AM. There is a break for breakfast at 8:30, then its time to prepare for the day's practice. On Mondays, when practice does not start until 6:00 PM, Hoover rarely leaves the office until 8:30 PM. With a schedule like that "Doc" rarely lasts until halftime of the Monday Night Game.

With hours like that, another key to Hoover's success and longevity is his family. Hoover's wife, Elva and family, son Bryan, daughter Catherine, son-in-law Thomas Cole and grandson Andrew share in Hoover's long list of awards. "I've been fortunate to have a terrific wife and family, they've always been very supportive in every way."

Two years ago the father of the author of this article suffered a broken arm after falling in the parking lot at the ACC baseball tournament in Greenville. It was a Saturday night, right at dinner time, when the call was made to the Hoover home.

Fifteen minutes later, with dinner on hold in the microwave, "Doc" was examining the patient. That's Doc Hoover. Always willing to help, always there to help. The coaching profession's loss was the athletic training industry's gain.

Emergency Services

The Clemson University Athletic Department provides the following for your safety and emergency medical needs:

1. Advanced cardiac life-support stations in four locations (North stands, Upper North deck, South stands, Upper South deck). These units are staffed with skill-care nurses, physicians, cardiologists, internists, paramedics, and EMTs.
2. Mobile units of EMTs and paramedics are strategically located throughout the entire stadium.
3. Ambulances with life-support equipment are available in North stand and South stand areas and have prearranged routes for evacuation to local hospitals.

Learn to recognize these personnel and facilities.

WHAT TO DO IF EMERGENCIES ARISE:

Please step back and give the organized EMS personnel room to work. Well-intentioned attempts to help by untrained persons interfere with the efficiency of the EMS system. If you have basic or advanced training in specific life-support methods, make your qualifications known and offer your help. Untrained personnel can frequently be more harmful than helpful.

Most emergencies occurring at the stadium result from pre-existing medical conditions. Bring your medical identification card or wear medical identification jewelry. Moderation is the key with dress, food, beverage intake, and physical exertion. The two most frequent medical problems at football games are allergic reactions to insect stings and heart attacks.

INSECT STINGS:

Common at outdoor events. Treat immediately with ice and seek medical advice. If allergic, carry a kit from your physician with you.

HOW TO RECOGNIZE A HEART ATTACK:

The symptoms of a heart attack vary, but the usual warning signs are:

1. Uncomfortable pressure, fullness, squeezing or pain in the center of your chest lasting for two minutes or more.
2. Pain spreading to the shoulders, neck, jaw, arms, or back.
3. Dizziness, fainting, sweating, nausea, and/or shortness of breath.

EXPECT A DENIAL

Frequently heart attack victims deny they are having a heart attack. The event is frightening or they don't want the embarrassment of a false alarm. Therefore, they delay getting help by ignoring their symptoms or rationalizing, "It's just indigestion."

Find out what's really wrong. Prompt response can dramatically increase chances of survival and recovery.

New therapies have been developed that can minimize heart damage and save lives if treatment begins within the first few hours of symptom onset. "Time is muscle." Get help or get to a hospital immediately.

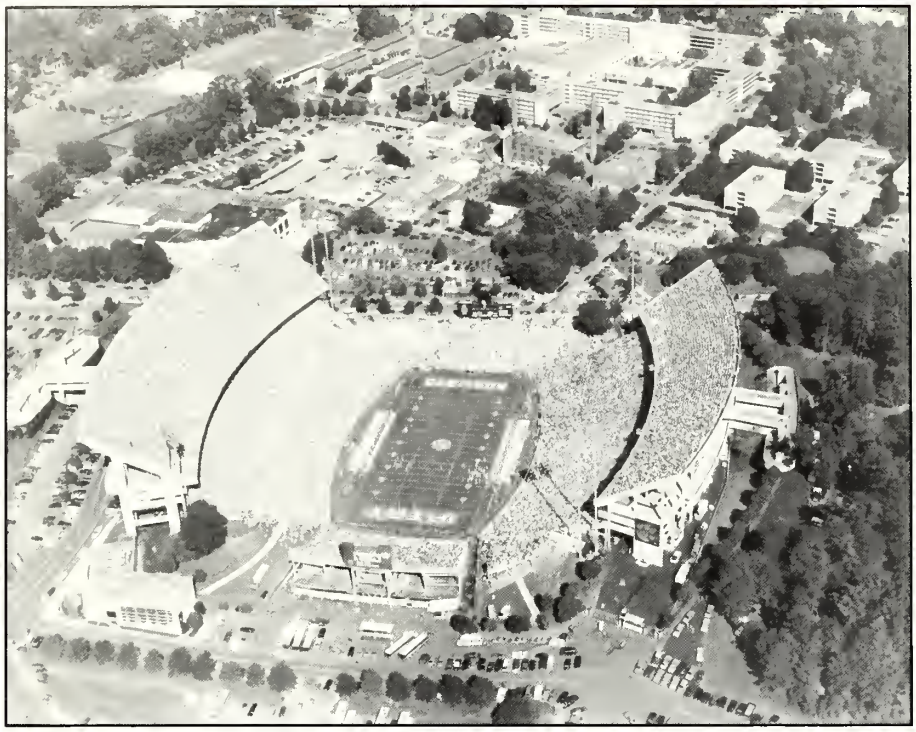
Memorial Stadium



Clemson has won over 72 percent of its games in Death Valley.

In the first 51 years of Memorial Stadium, Clemson has a record of 174-64-7, including a 16-2-1 ledger over the last three seasons. Clemson had a 16-game unbeaten streak at home between 1990-92 and has a career winning ratio of 72.5 percent.

The stadium has definitely been good to the Tigers who call it home, but the stadium was constructed against the advice of at least one Clemson coach. Just before head coach Jess Neely left for Rice University after the 1939 season, he gave Clemson a message. "Don't ever let them talk you into building a big stadium," he said. "Put about 10,000 seats behind the Y.M.C.A. That's all you'll ever need."

Instead of following Coach Neely's advice, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place would take some clearing—there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work: clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally, on September 19, 1942, Clemson Memorial Stadium opened with the Tiger football team thrashing Presbyterian College, 32-13.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40's, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron went on to become a civil engineer in Louisiana.

There are many stories about the stadium, including one stating that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner of the stadium as the concrete poured.

Howard says that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid sod on the field," he says. "After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten halfway through. I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more week's pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through. After that it took them three days to do the rest of the field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons."

Howard says that on the day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 and we played at 2:00." But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and, in 1960, a total of 5,658 west end zone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large end zone, "Green Grass" section, this expansion increased capacity to about 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of the stadium as crowds swelled—the first one in 1978 and the second in 1983. This increased capacity to over 80,000 which makes it one of the 10 largest on-campus stadiums in the country.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as "Death Valley." It was tagged this by the late Presbyterian coach, Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his P.C. Teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillan said the place was like Death Valley. A few years later the name stuck.

On November 16, 1974 the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

Athletic Director Bobby Robinson says that Memorial Stadium has many features that make it a top facility. "One thing that makes it so good is the number of sideline seats," he says. "We don't think there is a bad seat in the house.

"We also have outstanding dressing rooms, press facilities, and ample parking nearby. Another unique feature of the stadium is the number of private boxes."

If Memorial Stadium is expanded again and the capacity is pushed closer to 100,000, there will be room for construction over the west stands, enclosing that end like a horseshoe.

Luckily, the stadium wasn't built behind the Y.

Clemson has the most exciting stadium entrance in the nation.

Mark Swygert

by Beth McInnis

When Clemson golfer Mark Swygert heard that his former teammate Danny Ellis had advanced to the finals of the U.S. Amateur Championships a few weeks ago, he and Bobby Doolittle, another former Tiger, got in the car and drove all night from Clemson to Houston to walk with Ellis the next day. Some call that commitment, others call it dedication. Whatever it is, Mark Swygert is bursting at the seams with it.

For the first time in four years, Swygert will hit the links without the likes of Danny Ellis, Nicky Goetze and Bobby Doolittle sharing the lineup card. The four have been the strength of the Tiger golf team for the past three years, so for his senior season and his first shot at leadership, Swygert is on his own.

"In the last two years, I think there was a lot of pressure on the older guys. Really, I could look at it one of two ways: I could relax a little and let their good scores cushion mine, or I could really put the pressure on myself and try to outshine them. It was a two-way street," said Swygert.

Given the choice, it would appear that Swygert chose to try the latter. Heading into his senior year, Swygert ranks 12th in Clemson stroke average history with a 74.43 average overall. He finished his junior season strong, just four-over-par for his last five tournaments covering 15 rounds of golf and garnering four top-10 finishes.

Additionally, he made honorable mention All-American by finishing seventh at the NCAAs, becoming just the 5th underclassman All-American in Clemson golf history. His number-seven finish was the second best ever for a Tiger in the NCAA tournament.

"In all, it really helped my game to play with those guys. In order to compete, I had to raise my performance to their level, so they really made me and my game mature."

When Swygert came to Clemson he was not used to playing second fiddle. He started for the Spring Valley high school boys' golf team in the eighth grade and quickly moved into a leadership position. He was the Vikings' stroke average leader for three straight seasons and was the 1989 State Junior and Class AAAA prep champion.

"In high school there tends to be one player who leads the team. In college, everything is different. Instead of being one good player, you're playing against Top 15 players every week and you learn to be humble." Swygert learned the hard way, finishing no better than 18th as a freshman.

The adjustments came with time, and with experience. "From time to time, in junior tournaments, you may come into contact with a few top-ranked players, but that's really the only taste of college golf you get until you find yourself in a field of Phil Mickelsons or David Duvals."

Or, paired with Gary Nicklaus, as Swygert was during the summer of 1991. He was playing in the U.S. Amateur and, of course, the Bear himself was in the gallary for the match.

"Standing at the first tee was chilling. Gary was a big name at that tournament. We had hundreds of people following us so it was pretty exciting."

So how does one keep one's calm when playing in front of the great one, much less, against his son?

"I just tried not to think about the fact that Jack Nicklaus was right there. I concentrated more on my play and it turned out okay."

An understatement. Swygert birdied a couple of holes on the back nine and gained the victory, and a handshake from Jack. He went on to reach the quarterfinals of the prestigious event.

Phil Mickelson, the eventual champion of the event, proved too much and took the quarterfinal, but Swygert still had a final-eight finish.

The golf bug first bit Swygert at the age of eight when he and his brothers started playing around the local golf course. Although his father played some golf, he would not call his a golfing family.

"Eventually, my brothers' interests changed, but I became addicted to golf. Pretty soon my friends and I were hanging around the country club all the time and playing 36 holes or so every day."

He started playing in tournaments at the age of 13 and found success in the game.

"I found out it was something I enjoyed and was pretty good at, so the success I experienced made me go after it even harder," he said.

The same can be said for Swygert's performances at the NCAA Tournament. Last year, he became just the second Clemson golfer to record four straight rounds of 73 or better in NCAA play (former teammate Thump Delk is the other). He has a career average of 73.5 in 12 NCAA rounds, tied for the fourth best NCAA average in Clemson history.

What makes that tournament so special?

"There's just something about it. It's the last tournament of the year and the whole team just gets really geared up for it. Over the last few years, we've gone into it thinking we had a good shot at winning it. That mode of thinking makes all the difference. If I go into a situation believing I'm going to do well, I will."

And this season?

"I think we'll surprise people this year. The general idea seems to be that since we graduated four out of the five NCAA players this year, we won't be very good. However, while this is going to be a very different team than we're used to, I think we'll see some low scores and strong play."

He's waited three years to shine on his own, but all the "we" talk from Mark Swygert certainly tells us he is a team player.

He is a team player who would do anything for his teammates...even if it means an all-night drive across country to lend support.

Swygert's All-American career at Clemson included a victory over Gary Nicklaus during the 1991 U.S. Amateur. After the victory, Swygert accepted congratulations from Gary's father.

The Clemson Tiger

How the Tiger Cub Came to Clemson

by Liz Newall
courtesy of Clemson World Magazine

Far, far away in a deep, thick jungle lived a family of Bengal tigers. The father tiger worked all day gathering food. He hunted and fished and harvested wild vegetation. At night he rested from his hard day's work. He was a good father.

The mother tiger spent all day preparing the food that the father gathered. And at night, when the moon was bright enough and when she didn't get interrupted too much, she worked on her book—Jungle Tales of a Bengal Tigress.

They had one cub, a fine, strong young tiger with unusually bright orange stripes. When he was just a baby, he was very very frisky. All the neighbors would say, "He is such a fine cub. His parents must be very proud." And they were.

As the tiger cub grew, he became even more frisky, climbing trees to the shaky tiptop, bungee-jumping from waterfalls, plucking the feathers of jungle fowl. And at night while his father tried to sleep and his mother tried to write, the cub ran up and down banks and hills in the jungle, practicing his roar.

He began to worry his parents. Finally, one night when the stars were brighter than usual and the cub was louder than usual, his father said to his mother, "We simply must do something with our son. He needs a challenge, some discipline, and this jungle just isn't large enough to hold him."

His mother was trying to write at the time. "He's just spirited," she answered without looking up from her notebook.

"Just spirited like your brother!" the father said rather angrily, jerking his tail with every word. This got the mother's attention. She dropped her pencil and said, "What's wrong with my brother? He's smart and brave and well educated," she said. "And, I might add, he's very famous."

The father didn't reply for a minute or two and the mother was suddenly afraid she had hurt his feelings. She softly ruffled his whiskers. "Perhaps, you're right. Maybe our son is too spirited for the jungle, just like my brother was."

The father tiger nodded. "I think we should do what your parents did. "Send him to college?" the mother tiger said, suddenly missing her son. "He would get a very good education," the father tiger said.

The mother did not reply.

"And he could come home on holidays," he added.

The mother tiger still said nothing.

Finally, the father tiger said. "You could finish your book, uninterrupted."

The mother tiger thought for a minute. "He does need a good education," she said, picking up her pencil again, "and I suppose they could use another tiger at Clemson."

When the cub's parents told him, the cub could not hide his joy. His plan had worked. He would soon be in college and working out with his very favorite uncle, The Clemson Tiger. He brushed his orange stripes, turned on his Tiger Rag CD, and began practicing pushups.

Clemson will have a second mascot for today's game with Georgia Tech as the Tiger Cub premiers in Death Valley. The Cub will help his uncle with what Ken Hatfield hopes will be many pushups.

Vickery Hall

The mission of Vickery Hall is to function as a comprehensive support system to address the various transitional needs of student-athletes and, in turn, give each individual the opportunity to make the most out of his or her college experience.

Clemson University's commitment to provide its student-athletes with the very best of facilities is evident in many ways. From the soaring upper decks of Memorial Stadium, to the state-of-the-art strength-training facility, young men and women from all 18 of Clemson's varsity sports have the very best in facilities for training and competition. Vickery Hall is no exception, as the $3 million structure is as impressive aesthetically as any of the other facilities. But the importance of Vickery Hall to the Clemson University Athletic Department is not found in the structure itself, but in the many programs that the building houses.

Vickery Hall opened in the spring of 1991 and is the first facility in the nation originally constructed for the purposes of meeting the comprehensive needs of student-athletes. The two-story, 27,000-square-foot building is open throughout the day and into the evening to accommodate the extended schedules of student-athletes, and consolidates a variety of academic services for their use.

The philosophy behind Vickery Hall is to provide the Clemson student-athlete with a program that will meet his or her needs academically, in personal growth and development, and with career assistance. Vickery Hall is tangible evidence that, at Clemson, the athletic department has made a commitment to make the student-athlete's total experience a rewarding one, even after he or she enters the professional world.

"Vickery Hall is one of the most important facilities the Clemson University Athletic Department has ever built or will ever build. It makes a philosophical statement about the institutional commitment—giving our student-athletes the same opportunity to achieve their full potential academically that we give them athletically. We're very serious about that," said Athletic Director Bobby Robinson.

Given the time pressures of athletic participation and practice, student athletes face a difficult balancing act in trying to perform well both on the playing field and in the classroom. With respect to this, Clemson's Student-Athletic Enrichment Services (SAES) has provided one of the best academic support and advising programs in the nation over the last several years. The completion of Vickery Hall gives SAES an even greater opportunity to help student-athletes reach the short-term goal of graduation and the long-term goal of success in the world. The facility is open throughout the day and into the evening to accommodate the extended schedules of the student-athlete.

Vickery Hall is located in the mainstream of east campus, behind Jordan Hall at the top of Bryan Mall. The main entrance to the building is a 1,570-square foot reception/office area, comprised of five advisors' offices, two graduate student offices, and a conference room. Also located on the bottom floor is the office of Bill D'Andrea, the director of Clemson's student-athlete enrichment program.

Vickery Hall operates under the guidelines and policies of the university and the center's staff adheres strictly to the rules and ethical conduct standards of the university. In addition to the director, the staff also consists of six full-time advisors, two graduate assistants, and 50 tutors.

The building also boasts a 175-seat auditorium to be used for classes, team meetings, review sessions, and seminars. The various speakers and lecturers who come to work with Clemson student-athletes as part of the student-enrichment program also use this facility. The auditorium is equipped with a projection booth and state-of-the-art audio and video equipment and will be available to other campus groups when not in use by Student-Athletic Enrichment.

Another area of the main floor, the computer resources area, consists of a general computer tutoring room and a computer science tutoring room. The computer room contains 30 personal computers for hands-on computer tutoring, word processing and other general uses.

The 13,000-square-foot study and tutoring area on the second floor comprises the majority of the center. This area contains 11 classrooms and 28 tutorial rooms, including a large 65-seat study room and nine 20-seat study rooms, which are designed as classrooms with freestanding desks.

Nelson Welch and Warren Forney use two of the 28 computers on hand in the Vickery Hall computer lab.

Computing Facilities

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Services has recognized the need for students to have access to high-quality computing equipment and has made a commitment to providing the student-athletes at Clemson with such equipment.

Located on the first floor of Vickery Hall is the Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Services Microcomputer Labratory. The lab is open six days a week, for 16 hours a day on Monday through Thursday.

The lab staff consists of mostly graduate students, many of whom are pursuing advanced degrees in computer science. Lab staff members are available for tutoring of any Computer Science course as well as the many management, engineering and business courses that deal with personal computers. Student-athletes may also arrange tutoring sessions outside normal lab hours any time during the school year.

Computers in the lab can reach many of the other machines on campus, including the NAS mainframe, and are, in turn, connected to a worldwide internetwork, allowing lab machines to access computing resources throughout the world. This also allows access to lab resources from computers throughout the world.

Student-Athlete Career Assistance Program

The Student-Athlete Career Assistance Program is one of the most important programs provided by the staff of Vickery Hall. The philosophy of this program is to provide help in securing summer employment and to aid in meeting long-term career goals.

By using the resources available to the University, Alumni Center and the Athletic Department, Bill D'Andrea is working to establish a network of businesses, companies, and executives who will help assist with the Summer Employment Assistance Program. The program's main goal is to provide the student-athlete with a job experience and a work history, which he or she can apply to his or her academic discipline.

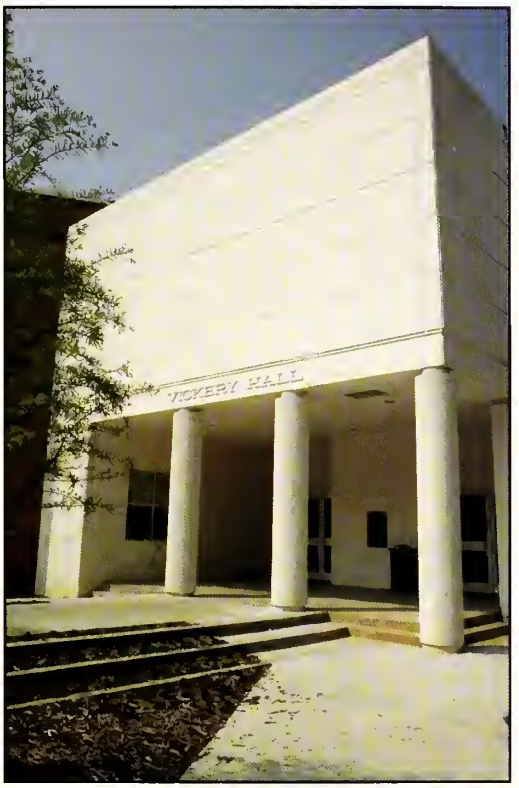
The Long Term Career Assistance Program will be coordinated from the academic colleges, the Placement Center, and through the Athletic Department contacts. This program is designed to better prepare the student-athlete for full-time employment and will focus on resume writing and interview techniques so that each student-athlete will be competitive and aggressive when dealing with companies who visit the Clemson campus.

Personal Growth Program

Another aspect of Clemson University's commitment to help student-athletes reach their potential in all areas of their life—academically, athletically, and socially, is the recently implemented personal growth program. This program is one of the many purposes of Vickery Hall. This particular area of student development is designed to enhance and support the lives of student-athletes during their enrollment in college as well as in their life experiences after graduation.

The Vickery Hall staff realizes that student-athletes have more obligations than a regular college student. The personal growth program seeks to eliminate some of the stresses of adjustment to the higher level of academics and athletics. It is the group's special task to assist the student-athlete by creating a finely tuned balance of all areas to insure success in obtaining a Clemson University degree, by supporting successful athletic practice and competition, enhancing personal growth, and helping with the transition to life after college.

A series of personal growth programs will be offered to student-athletes throughout each semester. Some programs may accomplish their objectives in one session, while others may be ongoing throughout the academic year. Some of the personal growth programs are as follows:



Vickery Hall was the first building in the nation built to meet the comprehensive academic needs of a university's athletes.

Freshman Success:

This program will seek to make the freshman's adjustment to college life easier by covering many areas of adjustment to university life.

Alcohol and Drug Issues:

The intent of this program is to provide the student-athlete with an overview of the disease of addictions and chemical dependence. Emphasis will be placed on providing basic awareness of how substance abuse effects individuals, families and athletic teams.

Current Topics of Concern:

The idea behind this segment of the Personal Growth Plan is to address issues that effect students such as human sexuality, birth control, date rape, etc.

Career Preparation:

The Career Preparation Plan is to encourage all student-athletes to think about life after sports and after graduation. Many sources of information will be available, from career testing to self-paced computer programs, and even with resume preparation and interview skills.

Nutrition and Eating Disorders:

Eating habits and proper diet are very important in maintaining a sound body and mind. The focus of this program revolves around presenting information so that student-athletes can analyze their own eating habits and carefully choose a balanced diet with enough calories to maintain good health.

Personal Finance:

Student-athletes on athletic scholarships are not allowed to have jobs during the academic year. Therefore, it is important to budget personal finances so they do not run out before the semester. This program not only discusses budgeting but also the responsible use of credit.

Stress Management:

All student-athletes face additional concerns during their college days than normal students. Many times these add stress to the everyday lives of student-athletes. The object of this program is to teach the student-athlete ways of identifying and handling personal stress so it does not interfere with the maintenance of good mental and physical health.

Interpersonal Communication:

Communication is necessary in all areas of life to improve happiness, instill contentment and enhance success. Programs dealing with interpersonal communication will involve improvement of listening skills, verbal skills and learning respect for the feelings and emotions of others.

Study Skills/Time Management:

These two topics are combined because a major part of developing good study skills involves having the time to delegate to studying. Objectives of this program are to expose student-athletes to different types of study techniques that are proven effective.

Motivation/Self-Esteem:

The objective of this program is to improve the level of self-esteem for student-athletes to positively impact their productivity in all areas of campus life.

THE TIP OF THE TALE!

Nothing can beat watching the Tigers play in Death Valley on a beautiful fall afternoon. But there's even more to the Tiger Experience than football. Take some time while you're here to enjoy all that Clemson has to offer!

Two of the most beautiful spots on campus are the University's unique historic houses. The John C. Calhoun House, home of the former U.S. senator and vice president and of his son-in-law, University founder Thomas Green Clemson, is a National Historic Landmark. Hanover House (pictured above), a 1716 example of South Carolina French Huguenot architecture, was moved from Berkeley County in 1941.

Both are open to the public year-round. The John C. Calhoun House is open 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday-Saturday; and 2-5 p.m., Sunday. Hanover House is open 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Saturday; and 2-5 p.m., Sunday. Admission donations are accepted.

Today's Band Program

by Beth McInnis

As the Tigers take on the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets, we celebrate IPTAY Day in Death Valley. Over the years, IPTAY has become synonymous with Clemson athletics, and in more ways than one.

You probably have noticed the new uniforms donned by Tiger Band. This summer, funds provided by IPTAY went to purchase the new uniforms. IPTAY has supplied the uniforms and provided the monetary backing to send the band to away games for many years. Clemson is one of the few schools in the nation whose band travels to every away football game and IPTAY is the primary reason.

The ears of Tiger fans worldwide will perk up when they hear the opening notes of "Tiger Rag" and those familiar chillbumps are all thanks to the dedicated bunch known as "The Band that Shakes the Southland."

Today, Tiger Band opens festivities with the traditional pregame show. Selections include "The Star-Spangled Banner," the Clemson University Alma Mater, and "Washington Post." The band will then spell out "Tigers" in script and perform "Tiger Rag." In keeping with the IPTAY Day theme, IPTAY President Thurmon McLamb will dot the "i".

McLamb is a member of the Clemson class of 1957. The resident of Little River, SC has served IPTAY for over three decades. He is the owner of an investment property company near Myrtle Beach, but is present for most Clemson sporting events, home and away. Additionally, McLamb has served on the Clemson University Board of Visitors and is a charter member of the President's Club of Clemson's Alumni Association.

As soon as the alma mater and national anthem are performed, Tiger Band will line up at the base of the hill and welcome the Tigers as they rub Howard's Rock and pour into Death Valley.

Today's halftime show has a Spanish flair. The band will perform two selections. The first is "Aztec Fire" followed by a longer "Malaguena." Both selections will feature performances by the Tiger Band flagline and the Tiger Twirlers.

One of the featured groups in today's halftime show, the Tiger Twirlers are a group becoming more and more nationally recognized every day. This summer, the group attended a national college competition at Notre Dame and placed second.

"The word is getting out that Clemson has quite a twirler group," said Dr. Mark Hosler, Tiger Band Director. "They've acquired a national reputation."

Brandy Perry, a junior elementary education major from Seneca, SC is this year's twirler captain. "It's a really great group to be involved with. We're all close friends, in and away from the band," she commented.

Not only is Perry Clemson's twirler captain, she has also recently added to the national recognition of the group. She was named Miss College Majorette, 1993.

Six young ladies, Carrie Ann Dunn of Selden, NY, Brandy Perry of Fair Play, SC, Kristen Hanson of Durham, NC, Nicole Mason of Stone Mountain, GA, Gina Brown of Piedmont, SC, and Nicole Carrado of Export, PA, make up the group. The coordinator of the twirlers is Hazel Martin.

Tryouts are held each spring and each participant must perform one routine of her own and one coordinated by the group. The twirlers practice three days a week and on Saturday mornings. During game weeks, or weeks with special performances, they will put in one or two extra hours per week.

According to Perry, most of the current twirlers competed individually on a national level in addition to twirling in their high school band prior to coming to Clemson. Several of them still take part in those competitions.

Viewing groups like the twirlers within Tiger Band, it's easy to see why national recognition comes so naturally. The band is one of the most hardworking groups at Clemson and every Saturday they make Clemson faithful proud.

Clemson Alma Mater

Where the Blue Ridge yawns its greatness
Where the Tigers play
Here the sons of dear old Clemson,
Reign Supreme alway.

Chorus

Dear old Clemson, we will triumph
And with all our might
That the Tigers' roar may echo
O'er the mountain height.

Jaro Zawislan

by Sam Blackman

The family bond is the strongest adhesive known to man. Just ask Clemson Academic All-America and goalkeeper Jaro Zawislan.

His family has demonstrated that persistence and patience are not only virtues, but these characteristics also have rewards.

The native of Poland immigrated to Canada five years ago and is the starting goalkeeper for the top-10 Tiger soccer team. The road to Clemson for Zawislan was sometimes paved with cobblestones—challenges that have taught him lessons that will last a lifetime.

However, as Zawislan's story unfolds, these obstacles have made him appreciate the Western world that much more and has strengthened their family bond.

"I am really thankful to my parents for making the decision to immigrate to Canada, because it has allowed us more opportunities—so many more opportunities than we would have had in Poland," said Zawislan who is in his senior season.

"Everyone has adversity to face in their lives, but the situation we faced of not seeing each other for a long period of time made us a stronger family. Poland will always have a special place in my heart. It is where I spent my childhood."

When Jaro was eight-years-old, his father was seeking a better life for his family and ventured to the United States to find a new home.

"My father played for the Polish national team. But, when he was playing in the prime of his career he was injured and one injury followed another.

"He was on the team that won the Polish Cup in 1979. Later he had an opportunity to leave Poland just before Marshall Law was imposed."

After Marshall Law was declared in Poland, no one could leave the country. A tough decision had to be made by Zawislan's father whether to go back to Poland or stay in the United States and leave the options open with the hope of his family joining him in the West soon. His father decided to stay in the United States and he kept trying to get his family through the Iron Curtain.

"My father decided to stay for a while in the United States and keep the options open for us joining him there. He played soccer and worked while he lived in the United States. My mom finally received clearance to leave Poland in 1985. This was the first time my mom and dad had seen each other in five years. From that time on they were trying to take care of the immigration process. They turned to Canada because the paper work would go much faster."

Jaro and his two younger brothers were left behind in the care of his uncle with the assurance from the government that they would soon join their parents. But, another long three years passed before Jaro and his two brothers were allowed to leave Poland to join his parents.

To make matters worse, Jaro almost did not make it out of the country. His 17th birthday was approaching and it was mandatory that 17-year-olds had to register and eventually serve their country in the army for three years. Plus an additional two years of residence was required because of exposure to military secrets. Just a few days before his 17th birthday, Jaro was miraculously allowed to leave with his two younger brothers.

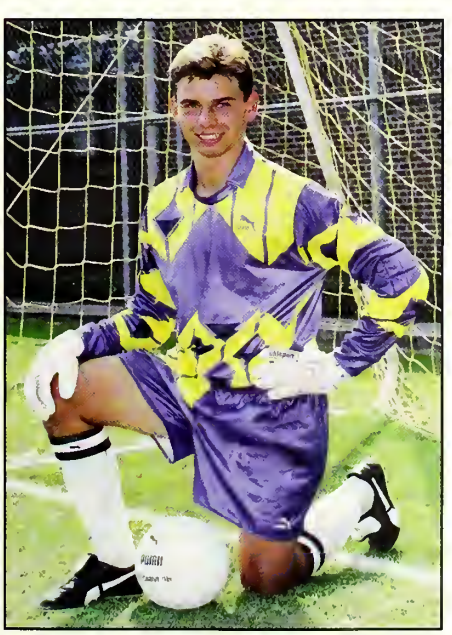
It was a happy reunion in Ontario when Jaro saw his father for the first time in eight years and his mother for the first time in three years.

"Our family finally was reunited, and we were so happy. That was a strange day leaving Poland, but there was much happiness in seeing my family. Life in Canada and America is great. I know our family went through adversity, but it could have been worse. The sad part is there are more innocent people who have suffered worse. The situation in Poland is better now with a democratic system. "

While there were troubling times in Poland politically during Zawislan's youth, his interest in soccer was allowed to flourish.

"In Poland, you don't decide to play soccer, you just play it. On every spot of grass all over the country people are playing soccer just like everyone in America plays baseball.

"I remember when I was six or seven-years-old, my father was a professional soccer player. When he would return home from soccer practice, he would play soccer with my brother and me. We made a soccer net and played indoors and outdoors. My father and brother would like to shoot and I would like to block them. Sometimes accidents would happen and my mom would not be too happy about us breaking things in the house, but I think she is happy now."



Zawislan's immigration from Poland took many years and taught him many lessons at an early age.

The broken glass and crystal helped shape Jaro into one of the best soccer players in Clemson history.

He is also one of the most decorated student-athletes at Clemson with a 3.55 gpr in his major of computer science and is first on the Clemson career list for most saves with 349 entering the 1993 season. He also won the school's Rand-McNally Award as the best geography student at Clemson last spring. Another accolade he is very proud of is winning the Edwards Sportsmanship award voted on by the Clemson coaches of every varsity sport. Last spring he was an Academic All-American and has been named All-ACC for two seasons.

"I am very happy I am at Clemson. Coach I.M. Ibrahim and his staff have been wonderful to me and have given me opportunities to grow as a soccer player and as a person.

"An opposing rival coach at a Canadian high school recommended me to the Clemson coaches. I had other offers from others schools but the athletic and academic reputation really stood out at Clemson.

"I wanted to play professionally, but my parents wanted me to get an education and security and worry about soccer later. They always applied positive pressure on me to succeed in education.

When discussing his most memorable game at Clemson, he instantly talks about the Duke game in 1992. In this game, two Clemson players were ejected from the game and in soccer they cannot be replaced. Clemson had to play with only nine men for 103 minutes. Jaro had 11 saves in this match and was named ACC Player-of-the-Week for his performance. The game ended in a 1-1 tie, a miracle for the Tigers under the extreme circumstances.

"The Duke game gave us a great feeling of achievement—overcoming adversities. We played with only nine men for most of the game against Duke's 11. Soccer and instances like the Duke match teach a person that you can overcome obstacles. Do not look for excuses when challenges occur. Put your mind and all your strength in the situation and if you work hard enough, you can overcome any obstacle."

Pierre Wilson

by Chris Metzler

If all goes well, Pierre Wilson will be "suiting-up" every day for the rest of his life. But what may surprise many people is that Wilson hopes to someday put on a dress suit, the customary outfit worn by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, and not a football uniform.

"I have always wanted to go into some type of law enforcement, but I did not want to be an everyday street cop so I looked into a career in the FBI. I have talked with several agents and they have given me some information on being an agent. I guess I just like the secrecy of the position and the danger of the job."

As a 300-pound defensive lineman one might think that Wilson may not fit the FBI agent mold, but Wilson has been told otherwise. "I met several agents who were bigger than I was. I have talked to them and they feel that it would be a good field for me to go into. There is a lot of discipline required to be an agent just like there is in football. I think that over the years football has helped me become more disciplined which should help me as an agent.

"I was also told that the agency tends to prefer people who were athletes not only because of their fitness but also because they tend to be more disciplined than most people."

But Wilson is not quite ready to end his days suiting up as a football player. "I would like to have a strong senior season at Clemson to help the team and also to give me a shot at the pros. I want to play football as long as I can but if there is not a next season it will not bother me much because I am planning on getting my degree in May and then applying for acceptance for the FBI program."

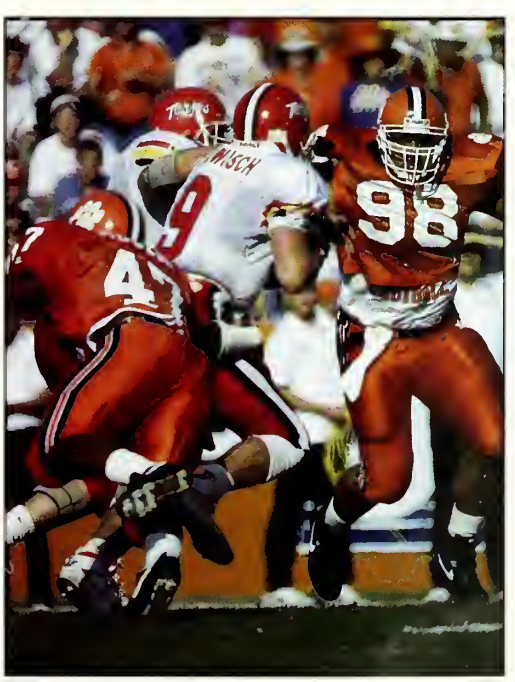
Over his career, Wilson has been a back-up defensive lineman, playing in 34 games while starting two. He has recorded three sacks and eight quarterback pressures in limited action. Wilson feels that those numbers will increase this season, though, as he hopes to earn more playing time and use his athletic ability. "I think that rushing the passer is what I do best because I can use my athletic ability to beat the offensive lineman and get to the quarterback. Pass rushing is based truly on athletic ability and I feel that I have more than many of the offensive linemen that I will face."

Clemson strength coach Gary Wade agrees that Wilson is extremely athletic for his size. "As a strength coach I can look at a person's vertical jump, their power clean score, and their 40-yard time to judge his athleticism and Pierre is very impressive in all of those areas." Wilson has a vertical jump of 31-1/2' inches which is one of the best by a Tiger in recent years. He also has a team best 324 power clean and a 5.0 40-yard dash. "He is stronger and more explosive than most of the athletes we have had in the weight room," Wade continued.

This season, however, Wilson wants to not only rush the passer but also be a solid run-stopper. "I have been working hard to get ready for my final season and I hope to have a good year. I think now that I am older I am not as worried about making mistakes. Before I was so up tight, but now I am much more relaxed."

Experience is not the only reason Wilson is more relaxed these days. "This past spring I got married which has really helped me out. Earlier I was wild and did things that I really should not have done. I realized I wanted to change and settle down. That is when I decided to marry Kimberly. She and I went to high school together and had talked about marriage for some time and decided the time was right.

"Being married has made me calmer and more relaxed, but when it is time to step onto the field I am no different than I ever was. I am as wild as I ever have been. When I come to play football, I realize that I have a job to do and I do it. But when I leave the field I go from being a defensive lineman to a normal person."



Wilson may be wearing a different style of uniform after his football career concludes.

As a defensive lineman Wilson is part of a rotation used by defensive line coach Les Herrin. "What you want to do is rotate in guys who can play the position and be productive to keep guys fresh. The reason we have used it is because there have been several guys capable of making the plays. If a guy can't be productive in there, we are not going to use him just to keep people fresh. I would rather have a tired player in there that I can count on than a fresh guy who can't do the job."

Wilson has enjoyed being a part of the rotation over the last three seasons and feels that it is the best system for him. "The rotation is the best part of the defensive line at Clemson. It allows us to be fresh which makes the unit as a whole more productive. When Chester McGlockton (a first round draft pick of the Los Angeles Raiders) was here I would go in every third play to give him a blow.

"Of course we all would like to be in every play, but it is better for the team this way. At times we would joke with each other about it. Once I went in for Chester and I sacked the quarterback, he got on me. He said he should get a share of that sack because he was wearing down that offensive lineman."

With the rotation, the defensive linemen have come to rely on each other. "Each lineman is like a coach for the others at game-time because we help each other by giving tips on the best way to approach the situation."

One of the linemen is not only like a coach for Wilson, but also a counselor. Over the last couple seasons Wilson and fellow defensive lineman Warren Forney have developed a friendship that allows Wilson to talk through every day problems. "I like to talk with Warren about football and other things. He is always there to talk to, which is great. He helps push me through tough times and is like a counselor for me. The defensive line is like a family within the team. We stick together."

For now Wilson will continue to suit-up in Tiger Orange, but don't be surprised if at the end of the season he trades in his football uniform for the suit of an agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Rube Fike

by Bob Bradley

The number of lives Rube Fike touched haven't all been counted yet. They'll still be added on as long as there is a Clemson.

While he touched thousands, he saved many more, first as a radiologist and physician, and second as an educator. Not an educator as we view one today, but as one who would provide a foundation where worthy athletes would have money available where they could continue their education.

You see, Dr. Fike is credited with being the originator of Clemson's world-renowned IPTAY organization, which now provides scholarships in 18 men's and women's sports. The seed that Dr. Fike needed for his now much-envied group was planted there by Jess Neely.

Neely served as Clemson head football coach for nine years (1931-39), but after only seven victories in his first three years, the Vanderbilt graduate didn't have to be a Phi Beta Kappa to figure out that help was needed—from any direction.

"I never worked with a person more professional, and one more energetic in wanting to help Clemson than Dr. Fike was," Neely once told George Bennett, who is now executive director of IPTAY.

"The Tigers had just been beaten by Wofford (14-13) in Spartanburg," Bennett recalls Neely telling him. "And that's when Coach Neely said 'something had to be done' and he proposed the idea to Dr. Fike. That's when the motor started running (in Fike's mind)."

Neely thought if $10,000 could be raised, the Tigers could have a pretty good program.

"His (Fike's) idea about this whole thing was what started all of the fund raising (at Clemson)," Bennett continued. "It all goes back to him. He's the grandaddy, the patriarch, of it all."

IPTAY's main target in the beginning was to improve the football team. And in its first year the Tigers had their first winning season in four years. In the sixth season after formation, Clemson was on the way to its first post-season bowl, the 1940 Cotton.

Neely, Fike and others had a vision in the mid 30's, but maybe it was Professor Walter M. Riggs, the first Tiger football coach (1896) and later college president, who really showed the institution's support of football in 1899. He said: "So long as the game of football helps to make better men of our students, stronger in body, more active in mind—men full of energy, enthusiasm and an indomitable personal courage;

"And as long as football helps the student in his college duties, instead of hindering him;

"So long as it helps to bring about a closer bond of sympathy between students and members of the faculty by creating a common interest apart from the routine duties; so long as in all these ways the best interest of his and other colleges are advanced, and the course of education aided in its highest mission, which is to make the best men out of material at hand; so long we will say for the game of football, long may it live and prosper."

Although these words were spoken some 35 years before the formation of IPTAY, the ideas expressed by Dr. Riggs are exemplified today in the total education program at Clemson.

The first talk about aid for the team came in 1931 after a win, two losses and a tie. Captain Frank J. Jervey, head coach Jess Neely, assistant coach Joe Davis, and Captain Pete Heffner of the university military staff were involved in the discussion.

Soon Fike came into the picture through correspondence with Jervey. Jervey wanted to form the "50 ($50) Club", but Fike wanted a smaller amount which he thought would mean more members and more money.

A letter written by Dr. Fike to Neely, dated August 21, 1934, seems to pretty well pinpoint the exact date of IPTAY's formation. The opening sentence said: "Last night we had a little meeting (in Atlanta) out at my house and organized the IPTAY Club." He went on to say that those attending the meeting were George Suggs, Gene Cox, E. L. Hutchins, Bill Dukes, J. R. Pennell, George Klugh, Milton Berry, Jack Mitchell and himself.

From that time until his death in 1956, Dr. Fike gave of himself freely to both Clemson and IPTAY, but mainly IPTAY. He served as its first president in a term that ran 20 years. He not only raised money, but he also recruited football players in the pre-grant-in-aid days.

Don Wade's Lenoir City (Tenn.) team was going to play Decatur (Ga.) High School in Atlanta's Grant Field on Thanksgiving Day in 1945 in a preliminary game to the annual Georgia Tech freshman encounter. Wade's team wasn't supposed to be even a sweat-breaker for the talented Decatur team, but it came out victorious 21-14 in a cold rain.

After the game Dr. Fike came up and told Wade: "I want you to go visit Clemson." Wade said he'd never met the man before or had even heard of Clemson for that matter.

Dr. Fike later got in touch with Wade's coach at Lenoir City and arranged for a visit to Clemson. "My coach and three of us players off that team got in his little ole bitty Willys and came over here for the Wake Forest game of 1945," remembered Wade. The Tigers lost, 13-6, on December 1st. A win would have almost assured Clemson of a bowl trip since entering the game it was ranked 16th nationally.

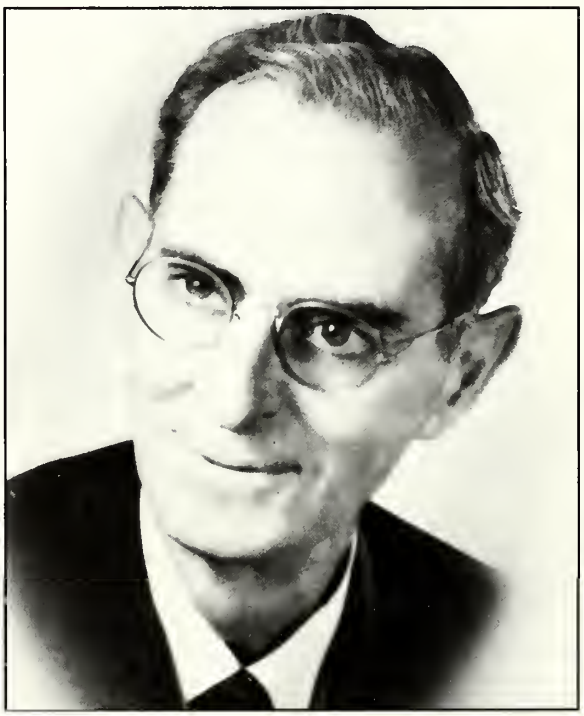
"Coach (Frank) Howard later wrote me a letter and offered me a scholarship," Wade recalls. "Back then you didn't sign anything...it was just a gentleman's agreement. He just said that if I came over, he'd give me a scholarship. That's all there was to it. But had it not been for Dr. Fike braving the elements on that Thanksgiving Day of '45, I still might not have ever heard of Clemson because there are some dark corners in those hills up around Lenoir City."

Dr. Fike not only lived to see "one of his recruits" play in two bowls, but saw him appointed to the Clemson coaching staff in 1953. Wade was a coach here 15 years before going to Tennessee Tech as athletic director and head coach for 15 more years. He then returned to Clemson as an administrative assistant for six years before retiring.

A little over $1,600 came into the coffers the first year of IPTAY in 1934, and even less the next year. The year Fike retired as president, the contributions jumped to over $68,000, and it was over $82,000 the year he died. Reckon what he would think of over $5 million now?

When the final roll is called, Dr. Fike is going to be right up front in the "Bene-factor Line" because he had a knack of doing things that benefitted people. And he just might tell the person next to him: "I want you to go visit Clemson."

Rube Fike had the instinct to lead people in the right direction.



Fike was the father of IPTAY and his foresight in 1934 is a reason for the organization's success today.
